FUSILIERS AIR-BORNE TO GUIANA

Angry Jagan Assails 'Show of Force'

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—British rushed reinforcements by air to this leftist-threatened colony today as seaborne troops were believed disembarking here under tight military secrecy.

The small group of Europeans in British Guiana welcomed the arrival of three troop-carrying British warships, but leftist Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan assailed the "show of force."

The airborne troops—120 men of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers—left the West Indies island of Jamaica at midnight for Georgetown aboard five chartered airliners. Other members of the Jamaica garrison had sailed earlier on the three warships which arrived off this capital city Wednesday.

As the warships—the 8,000-ton cruiser Superb and the 1,600-ton frigates Bigbury Bay and Burghhead Bay—raced up to the port, Jagan accused the governor of the colony, Sir Alfred Savage, of calling for the troops without consulting his elected ministers.

"The responsibility for whatever may happen is entirely that of the governor and those who have advised him," the fiery leader of the People's Progressive party told the colony's House of Assembly Wednesday.

The PPP, which holds 18 of the assembly's 24 seats, is demanding self-government and a trimming of the governor's powers. British authorities have accused party leaders of "Communist intrigues" and have warned that attempts might be made to set up a Communist state.

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, chief war claims commissioner, today recommended a varied scale of compensation with a maximum of $1 a day for each day military personnel and merchant seamen were held captive in Europe during the Second World War.

His recommendations were announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent. A high government official said the government will implement the report.

The commissioner, however, turned down a demand by the National Council of Canadian Prisoners of War for a flat $1 a day for European prisoners. The $1-a-day award was previously

Eden Says U.K. Ready For Red Talks

By W. G. LANDREY

MARGATE, Eng. (UP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that Britain is willing to discuss peace with Russia "at any level" from Premier Georgi Malenkov on down, and to guarantee that the proposed European Army will never "threaten Soviet security."

The gaunt foreign secretary got a tremendous ovation when he strode to the speakers' stand at the Conservative party's annual convention here to begin his first major speech since illness forced him into temporary retirement earlier this year.

Eden told his fellow-Conservatives that:

"We should pursue all the methods open to us to reduce international tension from a four-power meeting at the highest level to negotiation of even small issues. But we should not abuse our allies if they do not share our views."

CO-OPERATION KEY

The conference later unanimously approved a resolution which said:

"This conference, whilst welcoming any sincere and firm approach from the East, believes that the preservation of freedom depends upon closer co-operation between the British Commonwealth, Europe and America, and calls upon Her Majesty's government in its unique position to continue to do everything in its power to implement this policy."

The speech was Eden's first in six months. The foreign secretary, considered the eventual successor to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, underwent three successive gall bladder operations early this year. He resumed his duties this week.

Eden told the delegates that "despite a discouraging response from the Soviet Union, we shall persevere in our efforts to get the talks going on the main issues which divide East from West." He identified these main issues as Germany and Austria in Europe and the Korean problem in the Far East.

DOOR ALWAYS OPEN

"We are firm against aggression but the door is always open to discussions and agreement at any level," Eden said.

The foreign secretary referred to Churchill's proposal for a meeting of the heads of state of the Big Four.

Eden said the Soviet reply to the latest big three invitation for a conference on Germany and Austria "shows no eagerness for a meeting at any level."

The Kremlin's answer was an involved and complicated document, he said, "to which I trust

REDS COULD MAKE ATOMIC STRIKE—IKE

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the Russians have the capability to stage an atomic attack on the United States, and their capability will increase with the passage of time.

We shall return a clear and positive reply, because on our part we really want this four-power meeting."

However, he warned that while Britain "should pursue all the methods open to us to reduce international tension" her efforts must not injure the unity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. British survival depends on NATO, he said.

TWO-PRONGED POLICY

Eden restated British foreign policy on two points. The first, he said, was unity and strength of the western alliance which had been responsible for any softening in the Soviet attitude. The second is Britain's determination to "indulge in no provocation and to take advantage of any and every opportunity which may arise to solve our difficulties."

Britain, U.S. Leave Trieste To Italy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain and the United States jointly announced today they will turn over their occupation zone in the Trieste area to the Italian government "at the earliest practicable date."

This decision was described as a step to halt the "recent deterioration in the relations between Italy and Yugoslavia." Both countries claim the entire free territory of Trieste.

British and U.S. troops have occupied Zone A, including the city and port of Trieste, for nearly eight years. At present some 4,000 American and 3,000 British troops garrison the area. Yugoslavia occupies the remainder of the area, known as Zone B.

For the fifth successive week Times crossworders failed to come up with correct solution of the weekly puzzle.

Biggest stickler was No. 27 across to which the answer was "teller" for the definition "To be this is a reasonable enough ambition for a youngster." Many people thought "taller" was the word. Tragic Gamble

"We relied on a criminal's word. We had to. But we lost." That summed up today the reaction of Robert C. Greenleaf, 71, above, to a 10-day life-and-death gamble with his six-year-old son Bobby as the stake—a gamble that ended in the tragic death of the child.

Many Slides At Whatshan Before Mishap

Power Men Saw Earlier Shifts

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Power Commission was caught completely unaware by the disastrous mud and rock slides which buried Whatshan power plant on Lower Arrow Lake last August, commission chairman S. R. Weston said Wednesday.

Testifying at the government inquiry into the slides at the $5,800,000 hydro-electric development, Mr. Weston said he had been aware of shifts above the plant, but added:

"We were never at any time led to believe there was any danger to the switch yard or the power house."

"I have never heard anyone who was at Whatshan before the August slides express an opinion that there was any danger from earlier slides."

"No one has ever stated to me—layman or anyone else—that there was any danger of the land sliding down onto the power house."

"Looking back now," he added, "of course it's different."

Mr. Weston said it was always easy after a disaster "to look back and think of something that could have been done."

He told special commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Cline that the commission now is taking two major steps to prevent mud slides.

They are working to reduce the leakage of water from the tunnel which could have weakened the earth and caused it to move the land above the power plant so that recurrence of such slides will be "almost inconceivable."

He also said he still had full confidence in A. W. Lash, chief engineer for the commission.

U.S.-Wide Dragnet For Killer of Boy

KIDNAP SIDELIGHTS

Man Who 'Broke' the Case Tells of Hall's Arrest

EDITOR'S NOTE—Lieut. Louis Shoulders broke the Bobby Greenleaf kidnapping case by acting on a lucky tip from an informant. Here is his story:

By LIEUT. LOUIS SHOULDERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—I was sitting in my office about 3.30 p.m. yesterday when I got a call on my private line from a certain fellow who said "meet me at 7.30 or quarter to eight at Union and Pershing and I'll give you something plenty hot. It's a guy with a pistol and a lot of money."

I said to this fellow, whom I knew, "Where are you?" He said "never mind, just be there." At 7.30 I went by the Newstead police station and picked up Patrolman Elmer Dolan. We went to Union and Pershing where we met the cab driver.

He told me that he was supposed to bring this guy a girl at 8 p.m. He said he was supposed to rap on apartment 303 of the Town House and say "Steve, this is John."

This fellow told us we could use that pass-word but he said after you get in you had better nail him fast because he's wild and liable to do some shooting.

So we went up and tried it.

Dolan said "This is John" as we knocked on the door. The door opened immediately and we grabbed Hall and searched him, but he didn't give us any trouble.

I found $700 in his wallet and two suitcases full of money, which we later discovered amounted to almost $300,000. Dolan and I looked at the money and right away we knew it must be part of that Kansas City kidnapping. So we asked him and he said, "Yea, I'm the guy."

Later on, he led us to Mrs. Heady and they told us the whole story. He also told us he had hidden the gun in the drawer of a telephone stand and Dolan went back and got that.

That's about all there was to it. It was just routine.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Justice department officials praised St. Louis, Mo., police today for their "very good police work" in catching two of Bobby Greenleaf's kidnappers.

They said the St. Louis authorities deserve full credit for carrying out a "good investigation" and showing "all-around alertness" in the climactic finish of the case.

Although the FBI was in on the investigation, the final break didn't come until St. Louis Police Lt. Joseph Shoulders, acting on a cab driver's tip, found one of the kidnappers in a hotel with nearly half of the $600,000 in ransom money.

The FBI steadfastly refused to reveal any of the details of its role in the inquiry. It also declined to comment on the statement of Arthur B. Eisenhower that the bureau had entered the case "almost immediately."

Eisenhower, brother of the President and the banker who assembled the ransom money, said FBI agents were present while the cash was being counted.

TURNER STATION, Mo. (UP)—Neighbors and relatives of Tom John Marsh said today the fugitive suspect in the Bobby Greenleaf kidnapping murder is a "wino" who "doesn't give a damn about anything."

He was known in this little farm town as "Tom" or "Tommy" and filled the role of village bum.

"He's never done much for a living," said one neighbor. "He just loafed all the time."

Marsh, who has been accused of killing the six-year-old kidnap victim, has dozens of relatives here and at the nearby larger city of Springfield, Mo. The area swarmed today with FBI men and Missouri authorities on the lookout for the fugitive.

One relative who would not be identified said she would just as soon forget he was part of the family. "I don't want to claim any kin to him," she said.

WOMAN KILLED

16 Firemen Injured In Vancouver Blaze

VANCOUVER (BUP)—One woman was dead and 16 firemen injured today following a grocery-store fire that started Wednesday afternoon and still was burning this morning.

The fire in the rambling, modern store that covered almost a third of a city block started at 1.30 p.m. yesterday when two refrigerator mechanics working on the store's freezing unit accidentally broke an oil line feeding the unit's motor. A torch they were using ignited the oil. The men said oil seeped under a wall and up into the insulation.

Firemen thought they had the outbreak under control an hour after it started. It burned out of control, however, and two more alarms were turned in.

All available equipment and firemen were called to the scene. Damage was estimated unofficially at more than $300,000.

An early-closing-by-law effective here on Wednesday probably saved a catastrophe, firemen said. The store which usually was jammed with women shopping for groceries was empty except for the repairmen when the fire broke out.

Police Look for Tattooed 'Wino' in Kidnapping Case

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—A nation-wide dragnet was spread today for a tattooed man accused as the kidnapper of six-year-old Bobby Greenleaf, but police believed they might already have the murderer in the nation's most shocking abduction in a generation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation launched a cross-country search for Thomas John Marsh, 37, a stocky, blue-eyed man with his name tattooed on his right forearm and a dagger and snake on his left.

Marsh, a "wino" who has served time for molesting children, was accused by the man who engineered the kidnapping—the crime—as the triggerman who put a bullet through the little boy's head.

But a high-ranking police official in St. Louis said it was "an even bet" that Marsh's accuser, Carl Austin Hall, 37, spendthrift son of a Kansas attorney, did the shooting himself.

Hall, Heady Held in Jail

Hall and his plump girl friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, were being held in a St. Louis jail in lieu of $100,000 bail after being arraigned on a federal charge of extorting $600,000—by far the largest kidnap ransom in history—from the child's 71-year-old millionaire father, Robert Greenleaf.

They faced first-degree murder charges in St. Joseph, Mo., where Bobby's brutally beaten body was found Wednesday in a lime-lined grave behind a honeysuckle hedge at Mrs. Heady's home. They were to be moved to Kansas City, scene of the extortion, as soon as papers could be made out. The St. Joseph arraignment was set tentatively for Monday. A convicted murderer in Missouri faces a maximum penalty of death in the gas chamber.

The charges against the two in St. Joseph included kidnapping. Missouri has a law which carries the death penalty for kidnapping for ransom.

Also being held as a material witness, at the request of the FBI, in a private cell here was Sandra O'Day, 22, a 168-pound blonde prostitute. The FBI imposed secrecy; only federal officials could see her.

Hall had spent Tuesday night with her in St. Louis on a drunken spending spree. Police who arrested him there Tuesday night found $193,992 in his hotel suite. He said the O'Day woman took the rest while he slept.

Later he said he gave her $1,000 and told her to leave for California and "mail a letter to a man in St. Joseph."

A third version was that he gave her $2,000 or $3,000 but that it might have been more because he was too drunk to know.

The O'Day woman left St. Louis hurriedly Tuesday morning. She was arrested here, and the FBI drew a veil of secrecy about her.

Discrepancies in Hall Story

As the St. Louis police turned Hall and Mrs. Heady over to federal authorities there, they pointed to discrepancies in Hall's story. A high police official there said it could be assured Hall had been in fear the boy would be found in his hands and added, "we think it's an even bet that he and the woman carried out the kidnapping and murder themselves."

The same official said it was the "consensus of the department" that Hall and Mrs. Heady had the remainder of the money hidden somewhere.

The huge kidnap sum had been hastily gathered together from federal reserve banks by Arthur D. Eisenhower, Kansas City banker and brother of President Eisenhower, within two days after Bobby was spirited from an exclusive day school Sept. 28.

At the behest of the frantic father, Eisenhower, vice-president of the Commerce Trust Co., one of the city's largest banks, procured 40,000 pieces of money—$200,000 in 10-dollar bills and $400,000 in 20's.

As the kidnapper had requested, they were placed in two canvas bags, the 10's in one and the 20's in another. As directed, the whole sum then was put into an army duffel bag, making a currency package weighing 85 pounds.

will be held at St. Agnes Catholic Church here Friday morning, Wednesday, as the news broke of the tragic end of the most horrible kidnapping and murder since that of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., 21 years ago, Bobby's little schoolmates were in the chapel praying for him.

The day—the feast of the Most Holy Rosary in the Catholic Church—had been designated as a day of special prayer for Bobby in the French Institute of Notre Dame de Sion.

Dr. Hubert Eversull, the dentist who took charts of Bobby's teeth to St. Joseph to help make positive identification of the body, was reported to have suffered a heart attack Wednesday night. He said today he was "feeling fine" and denied the report. He was in his Kansas City office on schedule today.

Boy's Teeth Knocked Out

It was when the examination of the body was made that it was disclosed that Bobby, slain the same day—a week ago Monday—that Mrs. Heady had lured him from the school by a ruse, had been beaten.

His abductors struck him in the mouth before they shot him through the back of the head and buried him in the shallow grave, over which they planted flowers. A coroner said two of the child's lower teeth were knocked out, a third loosened, and both lips cut.

Hall's story was that all of this was none of his doing—that he planned the kidnapping, duped Mrs. Heady into posing as the boy's aunt by telling her the child actually was his, and turned him over to Marsh for the trip to St. Joseph. When he arrived there, Hall said, he found the child dead.

He said he buried the boy and brought the murder weapon, a snub-nosed revolver which was found in his hotel room, to St. Louis with him on the motor trip to pick up the ransom. Mrs. Heady, once charged with helping in the Oklahoma jail break of the notorious O'Malley gang in the mid-1930's, said she knew nothing about the murder or kidnapping until she read about it in the papers.

Hall and Mrs. Heady, who had been living together in St. Joseph for some time, were trapped in St. Louis because they fought each other after days of wild drinking and because Hall began spending money lavishly on prostitutes. A suspicious cab driver tipped police to his activities.

Hall, a wastrel son of a prominent Kansas attorney, had run through a $200,000 inheritance at an early age, and had served a term for armed robbery. He robbed eight cab drivers, obtaining a total of only $53. He had attended expensive Kemper Military School in 1931, there meeting Greenleaf's adopted son, Paul, and learning of the wealth of Greenleaf, a Cadillac distributor.

State Trooper Edward A. Butler of Blue Spring, Mo., recalled that when Hall had taken up taxicab robbery he (Butler) had remarked: "They had better watch that guy—he's going to kill someone—he's a sadist." Butler said Hall beat the drive (Continued on Page 11)

Boy's Ransom Filled An Army Duffle Bag

By WARD COLWELL
United Press Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY (UP)—Money had to be obtained from 12 federal reserve banks to amass the $600,000 in $10 and $20 bills demanded as ransom in the Bobby Greenlease kidnapping.

It took 80 persons working overtime to count the money and assemble it for delivery in an army duffle bag to the kidnapers.

Arthur B. Eisenhower, brother of the U.S. President, said Wednesday night he was asked in the forenoon of Tuesday, September 29, to provide $600,000 in ransom money to the father of slain Bobby Greenlease.

Eisenhower appeared at a special press conference. "I was first called into this case by Mr. (Robert) Lederman and Mr. Greenlease at the bank sometime in the forenoon of September 29," he said. Eisenhower is vice-president of the Commerce Trust Co., one of Kansas City's largest banks.

COUNTED ALL NIGHT
Eisenhower said Lederman, a business partner of millionaire Greenlease, did most of the talking. They asked him if he had $600,000.

"I said 'Yes,'" Eisenhower said. "We have much more than that."

"We mean in 10s and 20s," Eisenhower quoted Lederman as saying.

"I replied 'No,' since that had to come from 12 federal reserve banks," Eisenhower said. The money was obtained Tuesday afternoon and at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, September 30, it was ready.

Asked if the serial numbers were recorded, Eisenhower said, "No comment."

He said 80 persons worked overtime counting the money. "They had a good idea of what they were doing, but we tried to keep it a secret," Eisenhower said.

The money was $200,000 in 10s and $400,000 in 20s, making a total of 40,000 bills.

The huge sum then was placed in a bank vault while the Greenlease family awaited word from the kidnapers about a ransom rendezvous. On Saturday, three days later, Lederman picked up the money, accompanied by Paul Greenlease, an adopted son of the millionaire, and Robert T. Moore of Oklahoma City, another business partner.

Eisenhower was asked whether any law enforcement officers were assigned to the three men for protection when they left with the money.

TRIO GUARDED
"I am quite sure that Mr. Lederman, Mr. Moore and Mr. Paul Greenlease each had the necessary protection themselves," he said.

He would not discuss whether Greenlease, whom he had known personally for more than 40 years, was required to put up collateral to obtain the money.

"That is a confidential relationship," he said.

Eisenhower said the FBI "was in on the case almost immediately," although the federal agents were not called in directly by the Greenlease family.

"There were two to four FBI men in the bank at the time the money was being counted," he said.

GUNMAN'S MOLL

Bonnie Stuns Her Neighbors

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (UP)—Bonnie Brown, Heady lived with her two Boxer dogs in a neat white bungalow with a well-trimmed lawn and garden.

She led a quiet, genteel life. Or so her neighbors thought. They were dumfounded Wednesday when the garden in which Mrs. Heady took such pride turned out to be the burial place for six-year-old Bobby Greenlease.

They were equally amazed when they learned that Mrs. Heady, who had told them she was the divorced wife of a livestock commission man, was actually a former prostitute, the widow of a southwestern gunman and had a criminal record going back 20 years.

The neighbors stood quietly around the edge of the elm-shaded lawn at Mrs. Heady's house Wednesday to watch police dig for the body. They remembered that Mrs. Heady always employed a gardener to look after the shrubs and flowers.

"This is a complete shock," said one neighbor, Mrs. John T. Broce. "No one had any idea there was anything like this going on."

U.S. Warns UN Troops Will Defend Indian Guards

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—American and other United Nations troops will defend Indian guards and other members of the neutral repatriation commission in Korea if South Korea unleashes troops against the neutrals, a United States spokesman declared today.

The Korean armistice agreement, signed by both the Allies and the Communists, guarantees that an American delegation source stressed.

Assurances that the U.S. would live up to the agreement signed by Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison for the UN command last July 27 were understood to have been repeated to Indian and other delegates here since the Indians in the field have protested South Korean threats to attack their guards and to free prisoners awaiting repatriation questioning.

A delegation spokesman denied, however, that Henry Cabot Lodge, chief American delegate, had discussed such specific as-

Met Ex-Russian Police Boss in Gibraltar

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The San Diego Union in a copyrighted dispatch says today that Fabio Gallo, intermediary for a man claiming to be Lavrenty Beria, ousted Russian secret police head, has told his full story to Spanish police and to a Union reporter.

The dispatch, from the Union's Paris staffer, says Gallo told the reporter, Gene Fuson, that he met a man representing himself as Beria outside a restaurant in Gibraltar.

Fuson quoted Gallo as saying: "I made first contact with a Spanish representative of Beria at the Embassy Room Restaurant in Gibraltar by parking my car according to instructions in front of the restaurant and wearing a white jacket into the place . . . I went into the restaurant to make contact . . ."

"I said the Americans don't believe anything you say. They need more proof."

"The man took me to a car parked . . . Beria was in the car. The man ordered me to get in and said to the Spaniard, 'This is the package' . . ."

that he then went to the police and told his story.

"I was to attempt to make another contact," Fuson quoted Gallo as saying . . .

"When I failed to make contact on Sunday the police began to question me."

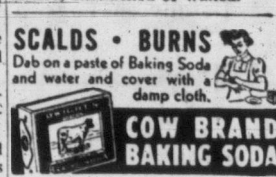

In his dispatch, Fuson said there was no question in his mind that Gallo was afraid, but "whether he was afraid of the police or retribution from another source I do not know."

Fuson said Gallo told him

CCF Gives Support To Resources Tax

By GORDON FORBES

The provincial government's proposed 10 per cent tax on logging and mining company profits was approved in principle by the Legislature early this morning after a three-hour debate.

The measure, applied only to profits over $25,000, was supported by the 14-man CCF group but opposed by the four Liberals and one Progressive Conservative.

A "division" called by Liberal leader Arthur Laing on second reading of the mining tax bill went 38-4. A technical hitch prevented the Liberals from calling a division on the logging tax bill.

Although the official opposition supported the bill, several CCF members voiced fear big operators, whom the tax should hit, would evade payment to the detriment of the small operator.

"The big companies are ready for the tax. They're not afraid of it," said Bob Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle).

He said collection of the tax will cost as much as the revenue from it.

Premier Bennett, who piloted the bill through the House in his role as acting finance minister, answered all the arguments which have been raised against the tax.

He said the government will get $3,500,000 revenue in an average year from the tax, but only $1,000,000 in the present fiscal year.

He denied the tax will retard capital investment.

"I think that claim has been refuted. Studies show that taxation, unless extreme, is not a prime determinant of location of investment."

He said the tax provides a means whereby the people can share in the utilization of its natural timber resources whether Crown-owned or privately owned.

The premier, dealing with the impact of the tax, said the tax will be allowed as a deductible expense for federal income tax purposes, personal and corporate.

Tax Examples Given

He gave this example:

A corporation whose total income subject to federal tax is $1,000,000, of which $500,000 is from logging operations, will have its total tax increased from $484,000, for federal income tax purposes alone, to $508,000, for both federal income tax and provincial logging tax.

This involves, he said, a $24,000 increased tax to the corporation, a $47,500 increased return to the province and a $23,500 decreased return to Ottawa—"or an increase over-all rate tax of 2.4 per cent."

"Roughly speaking, the revenue derived to the province under the tax will come half from the taxpayer and half from the Dominion," he said.

The premier said the development of a taxing statute to segregate logging income from processing and manufacturing income is "quite complex."

"The use of a formula has been found essential, as while in some cases a free market for logs may be available to determine price and relative profit, there will be many cases where such will not be the case."

The formula incorporated into the agreement has been transferred to the act as required. It's the result of the experience in Ontario and federal authorities are satisfied it will meet all the requirements of a logging tax in this province. If it does not, we have reserved the right to seek a revision of the formula," he said.

CCF Leader Arnold Webster said the CCF will support the bill, although he doubted if the government will get much revenue from it.

Rumor Evasion Plans

Administration of the tax is extremely important, he said. He referred to rumors of how companies plan to evade the tax.

"I hope the government will be aware of this and take precautions."

He complimented the government for the "few steps" it has taken toward redistribution of the tax burden.

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing said his party will do everything to oppose the bill, which he termed "the sheerest of folly" in view of the "parlous" state of the basic industries.

He wanted to know if the province really needed the revenue when it could afford to pay off $34,000,000 of the public debt in one year.

The Liberal leader pointed out there are 900,000 feet of unsold logs in the water today.

"Our short-range position is the most dangerous since 1929," he stated.

He told the CCF leader he'll regret supporting the bills in the near future.

"Where do you think the extra money is coming from. It all lands on labor. Labor is going to have to accept lower wages or lose jobs."

The forest industry, he added, needs more risk capital in B.C. and the new tax will discourage it.

"Many logging companies are in bad trouble."

'Get Out From Under'

Tony Gargrave (CCF, MacKenzie) supported the tax but said his chief fear is that the big companies will get out from under.

"Owing to the present depressed price of logs, there is a distinct possibility that the large wood products concerns such as MacMillan & Bloedel, Canadian Forest Products, Alaska Pine and Columbia Cellulose, and the large pulp and paper manufacturers, may be able to shove off the burden of the tax onto the small operators," he said.

Robert Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle) said the large integrated forest industries could force down the price of logs because a few operators control more than 60 per cent of the coast logging.

They had the power, he said, to depress the price of logs produced by the small operator to the point where they could prove their logs were produced at a loss.

"The government will get no revenue from this tax," he said.

He disagreed, however, with the Liberal leader who said risk capital will be scared away by the tax. B.C. had the "last horizons of the lush resources" and the investors will come anyway.

Dr. Larry Giovando (PC, Nanaimo) said he agreed with the principle of the bill but said the tax is being introduced at the wrong time.

"It should have been brought in 10 years ago," he said.

Labor Hurt By Bill

Gordon Gibson (Lib., Lillooet) said he was surprised the CCF didn't realize the tax would hurt labor.

"The bill is one thousand per cent wrong," he stated. "The tax will not get you anything."

not even the votes you think it will. I can't believe the honorable premier will bullheadedly put it through."

He said the government will spend more money checking to find out how much tax the companies should pay than it will get in revenue.

Mr. Gibson, a logging operator for 36 years, said he didn't come to Victoria to listen to two people who don't know anything about logging put through a new act.

"You're going against your common sense," he told the premier. "If you're backing big boys, you're making a big mistake. We want to keep as many of the small operators in business as we possibly can."

Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers said the government, if it's going to be successful in its forthcoming appeal for federal aid for various provincial projects, must first exhaust all its tax sources. Otherwise, he said, the government wouldn't have a case with Ottawa.

He said Mr. Laing didn't object to the federal 49 per cent tax on profits so he shouldn't oppose the little tax B.C. is imposing.

"I never saw anything in Hansard about him opposing that."

He said Mr. Laing is "shedding crocodile tears" for the benefit of the extreme capitalists his party represents.

"We are the middle of the road party," he said.

'Political Speech'

Opposition benches criticized the minister for making a political speech while speaking on a bill.

On the mining tax, the old-line parties voiced similar criticism as on the logging tax.

Mr. Laing said it's an improvident time to place a larger tax on mining because so many mines are closing down. He couldn't see the sense in a provincial tax on mining profits when the federal government is subsidizing the gold mines.

"Are we going to club our own people over the head in order to get more money out of Ottawa?" he asked.

Dr. Giovando said there are only three B.C. mines in a good position and the government had no right to impose heavier taxation.

He said the tax on mining is actually a 150 per cent increase over the present four per cent.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan), after criticizing the premier for debating such important legislation so late at night, said he'd support the bill but he favored a graduated scale of taxation because it is a fairer system.

Premier Bennett said full weight has been given to the admitted risks of development, and "no one will suffer who is not in a position to make a fair contribution."

Detachable collars of all types (leather, linen, fur) are big fashion news this year. Among the newest is a lapin collar and belt set studded with rhinestones.

AGREEMENT NOT NEAR IN SUEZ CANAL TALKS

MARGATE, Eng. (UP)—The Marquess of Salisbury said today Britain has "not yet reached agreement . . . even on general principle" in the negotiations with Egypt on the Suez Canal zone.

"And I am by no means certain that we shall," Salisbury told delegates in a foreign policy report at the annual Conservative Party conference. Salisbury was acting foreign secretary during the six-month absence of Anthony Eden.

The People Deserve the Facts

IN ONE OF THE ABLEST speeches yet delivered to the present Legislature, Mr. Gibbs of Oak Bay, caused such a flutter in the treasury benches and made so many telling points that some of them probably have been lost in the rush.

Three of them, apart from the excitement of partisan politics, which catch the headlines, are vital.

First, Mr. Gibbs demands from the Government a clear statement of its current finances. He is not satisfied to see the Legislature vote huge sums of money without examining every appropriation. If the Government does not intend to introduce an annual budget at this time, Mr. Gibbs rightly insists that at least it must submit all its estimates of expenditure to the House.

It would be a strange travesty on the parliamentary system if the Government expected the present House merely to extend, by lump sum, the estimates introduced hurriedly on the eve of dissolution last spring when a different Legislature was sitting.

There is no hurry about this session. The members are being paid an extra indemnity. They can sit as long as they please and should sit, until the year's end, if necessary, while they complete the business before them. Of this assuredly nothing is more important than the money votes which should be considered one by one in the normal fashion. By giving the Government a blank cheque the Legislature would abdicate its supreme responsibility.

Secondly, Mr. Gibbs wants to know the current facts of the hospital insurance scheme. As he says, the figures so far released give the public no idea where the finances of the system stand. Only a few and rather irrelevant figures have been revealed. What Mr. Gibbs expects, and properly, is a full statement showing precisely how much hospital insurance has been costing in recent months, how much is being collected in premiums and whether there is a surplus or deficit. Without that knowledge no legislator and no member of the public can possibly assess the Government's policy of refusing more money to the hospitals.

Thirdly, Mr. Gibbs seeks some light on the problem of milk, which has been obscured by a confusion of public statements from the Government, the milk board, the distributors and the farmers beyond public understanding.

Why is it, asks Mr. Gibbs, that a Government which is never tired of advocating competition and private enterprise has refused a company in Vancouver the right to open a new dairy plant and thereby reduce prices? And why it is, as Mr. Gibbs might have added, that the whole dairy industry, supposedly "decontrolled," at least in part, has actually been shackled in a system of producers' quotas—in fact, franchises much like beer licenses—without parallel in Canada? Why is it that the hard-working farmers find their necks in a noose of regulation which may well strangle their industry while the consumer cannot receive lower prices even when private enterprises offer them?

All these are legitimate questions and deserve candid answers from the Government. But the Government apparently prefers to withhold information on unpleasant subjects. It should be reminded that it is the servant and not the master of the Legislature.

Unfair to Park Boards

THE Legislature's inquiry into the cutting of timber in Salt Spring Island's Mount Bruce Park throws into clear relief the difficulties of a board appointed to manage Class "C" parks in this province.

Class "C" parks are areas designated by the Minister of Lands and Forests for the recreational use of different communities. Under current practice they are not subject to the development undertaken on Class "A" parks and are not directly administered by the parks division of the B.C. Forest Service.

The subsection of the Forest Act describing jurisdiction over such areas reads:

"The minister may appoint a park board for any Class "C" provincial park with power to manage, administer, regulate and control that park. The said park board shall be a body corporate and politic and shall be composed of not less than three and not more than five members."

With the appointment of such a body goes the unspoken injunction to its members to study all terms of the Forest Act and to see to it that recreational amenities are provided for the community it serves. But in that task, under the act's specific terms, the board is not given the supervision of trained parks department officials nor assured of financial assistance in its work.

Why any private citizen should assume such obligations can be explained only on the willingness of such individuals to work without recompense for the public good.

Fortunately there are British Columbians who will undertake such responsibilities. But unfortunately few of them can appreciate in detail the forestry and parks regulations under which they operate.

Clearly the act needs amendment. It should at least insert the qualification that park boards should operate only under the supervision of the parks division or an official of that agency. Too much responsibility is being imposed on the parks board members who work voluntarily and who have too little experience or training for the tasks they are invited to assume.

Not Very Satisfactory

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE IN THE B.C. Power Commission, shaken by the Whatshan slide, is not restored by the attitude of the power commission's counsel, criticized by Mr. Justice J. V. Clynne in the course of his inquiry into causes of the accident.

The public will draw a very clear inference from the eminent and highly respected jurist's statement that: "I realize now I'm not securing the active co-operation of the power commission in this inquiry" and his further remarks to the commission's legal representative: "I may be wrong but I was looking just as much to you as to Mr. Tysoe in discovering what happened. I would have thought the power commission would be anxious to take active steps to bring this inquiry all the information possible."

Such comment leaves the inevitable impression that the B.C. Power Commission, through its agent at the hearing, is not going out of its way to produce all the evidence that might be furnished to explain the disaster. Such an attitude implies that counsel, if not hostile to production of all the facts, is certainly not anxious to see that the fullest possible testimony is given. The public cannot escape the feeling that the power commission would prefer to leave some relevant data undisclosed. But why?

The inquiry commission set up to investigate the Whatshan slide is not, primarily concerned with finding a "goat." Its chief purpose is to discover why the accident occurred. Only by determining the cause can the commission fix responsibility or clear the power commission of the suggestion that the fault lay with the engineers who undertook the project.

Final Words

THE NECESSITY TO MAINTAIN a constant vigilance in preserving freedom of speech has now been carried beyond the grave. A news item reveals that the municipal council of Luton, England, has taken upon itself the responsibility of censoring the epitaphs on gravestones.

Here, surely, is the crowning effort in supervision and regimentation by the modern state. Although the Luton council declares its object is merely to keep the cemetery "tidy and respectable," it has obviously gone too far.

It is true that the average person will be unaffected by the new regulations. The simple data of birth and death are the usual limits of information on the memorial monument. But the man or woman unsatisfied with a mere statistical note will be hard hit. More than one has ordered a message inscribed that has lightened an otherwise dismal scene and sent them to their rest with a sense of mission accomplished. Many an ancient graveyard is the richer for its unusual epitaphs, and it will be a sorry day when some humorless, desiccated clerk is given the power to rule, from the depths of his mediocrity, on the still living words that decorate last resting places.

It is not often that modern times provide examples which were relatively common in an earlier age, such as quoted recently by the London Daily Mirror:

"Here lies John Racket
In his wooden jacket.
He kept neither horses nor mules.
He lived like a hog,
He died like a dog,
And left all his money to fools."

It is not the substance, however, but the principle of which we speak. Those who have lived in the full enjoyment of freedom of speech should not be deprived of it by a mere matter of transition.

LOOSE ENDS

The Flame Burns Low

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

AT this season the rustic mind suffers from an acute distrust of human nature, an annual loss of faith. Let us go into this rather deeply.

Hutchison

In the spring the rustic opens his summer camp alone. None of his city friends is there to help with the Herculean labor of setting up a ton of beds, lugging two tons of mattresses, washing a square mile of windows and painting several square miles of boards and shingles.

But in the first ecstasies of spring the rustic is too busy to remember the friends who are only waiting in the city, until the work is done, to pounce upon him. Once they know the camp is in working order, the wood cut and the meals on time, they pounce. The ravenous summer migration is under way.

DURING this period human nature appears at its best. Everyone is eager to help when there is no serious work to be done. There are volunteers on all sides for tasks long since completed. Friendship is kindled to a fine, gemlike flame when the sun is out, the weather warm, the drinks cool and the housewife happily locked up in the kitchen over her stove.

At such a time the city visitor, stretched out in a hammock, with a glass in his hand, rises to dizzy heights of intellect and usually lectures on the virtues of hard work and simple living, but the camp owner invariably is deprived of this wisdom, being occupied in mending the deck chair which some overweight guest has recently broken.

NEVERTHELESS, in this rousing company and feast of intellect he takes a bright and optimistic view of the human species. He invites more guests than the available beds will hold or the larder supply. He loves mankind and in the kitchen his wife's sweet content gleams through the smoke of the cooking.

Then comes the first blast of autumn, and all these higher instincts wither under a killing frost, and the migration takes sudden wing towards the city and the rustics wake up one chilly morning to find themselves alone in a bleak and friendless world.

NOW, once again all the labors of last spring must be resumed and reversed. To prepare a camp for the winter, to tuck it into bed for its long sleep, is a process of which the city folk are careful to remain ignorant.

Not for them the dismemberment of the plumbing system, the draining of pipes, the dismantling of the pump. Not for them the loads of mattresses and bedsprings, the unbelievable cargoes to be hauled over the long trail and carted back to the city. Yes, though I never used them once I myself, alone, unaided and at imminent peril of thrombosis, have lately carried two heavy boats and a large canoe to winter quarters while the people who played in them all summer were resting in the city from their labors.

WHEN all these prodigies have been performed, when the owner is tottering with exhaustion and soaked with rain and pump water, when his wife has cooked the last poor fragments of food, they sit down together for the final meal, the sober funeral rites over the dead summer. And they sit alone. Within the disordered cabin, its contents piled up to the ceiling, its last fire flickering low, its roof beginning to leak, there is no sound of friendly voices, no sophisticated city jokes, no clink of glasses, no summer mirth, nothing but the shape of vanished dreams, hollow echoes and the patter of mice who already have moved in for the winter.

SO the owners, broken and aged by their toil, abandoned by their kind, forgotten as in a sepulcher, brood silently over their last meal, before locking the door and burying another year. Their thoughts on human kind are pessimistic, dark and uncharitable. No sun shines outside and their last spark of faith gutters dimly within them.

Next year, they resolve, things will be different, everybody will do his share of the work and the owners will rest. But they know—having no faith in themselves either—that things will never be different. They will always be the same until the end when camp closes for good and new owners inherit their parents' slavery.

Human nature has gone into hibernation but it will break out again next summer radiant and benign, when the work is safely done.

Concerning Night Thoughts

The Times (London)

RECENTLY Pravda told the world that Soviet civil servants would in future work only between nine in the morning and six in the evening. The reason given was that "the system of late night working was causing great damage to the State."

What the truth of that may be is, perhaps, a matter for the Russians to decide for themselves. But certainly western ambassadors in Russia will be relieved at no longer having to grapple with the local custom of delivering diplomatic notes at 3 a.m.

And in general the notion of a Civil Service—or indeed any body of clerks—that works (or works) all through the night must be a trifling disturbing to non-Soviet citizens, brought up on the story of the reply—attributed to Charles Lamb among others—who, when he was reproved for arriving late at his office, said: "But consider, sir, how early I left."

There are, naturally, many perfectly adequate reasons for working at night. Not every one is able to teach "Tired Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep" at the normal time—though, when one comes to think of it, a large part of nature is nocturnal, and what are normal hours of sleep for the bee and the butterfly are not so for the bat and the badger.

NO DAMAGE

Yet even allowing that night sleep and day work are normal among human beings, there are many men who are forced to work at night—and not all of them look upon themselves as causing great damage to the public weal.

Burglars perhaps may—but then who knows what a burglar thinks or in what light he regards himself? Others, however, from editors to drivers of trains, and from stage stars to astronomers, who also have no choice, are (one hopes) unimpeachable characters. As they go yawning home by late night or early morning buses, they probably wish, most fervently, that they could regulate their lives by a more common-place timetable.

And yet—is it the midnight oil not sometimes diluted with a fair measure of humbug? If by chance a man is forced to work on into the small hours—or even if he does so habitually—he is apt to give himself most abominable airs about it.

Wearing a deliberately jaded look at lunch at the club he, somehow, allows the fact that "I didn't finish the chapter I've been writing till very near four this morning" to be wormed out of him. That admission, moreover, he slips out with a coy diffidence, as if he were unwilling to make too much of something highly meritorious.

Yet, in truth, was he not compelled to work so late at night because he had idled away the previous morning? There is certainly something rather noble and inspiring in the idea of "night thoughts," yet are they any better than day thoughts? Are they, indeed, even quite so good? Heavens!—starry heavens, for preference—is it possible that Pravda has to use a modernism as hideous as the possibility itself "got something there?"

IN THE NATURE

Scottish people are clannish, they have a passionate love for their country which is glamorous in folklore and deeds of valour. There's something about the bleak, rugged nature of the countryside that's defiant and glorious, symbolic of hardship and courage and adventure and somehow you find all that in the nature of a Scottish person.

—Rose Buckner.

THE ROMANTIC AGE

If there is one lesson that the boys in the desks boom, thunder and drum at the schoolmaster all day long in illustration of the difference between themselves and the grown-ups, it is that they are incurable romantics. We on our side do quite a lot to avoid learning it, but they are remorseless teachers of it and continue to assert it. We are hard to teach because, alas, no one could accuse us of being romantics since we grow up and get what we call a bit of sense. But the boys are dying for adventure and danger, longing to relaunch the Golden Hind, march away on some new crusade. This is the bread they ask, and we give them the stony of maths and grammar and all the rest of it.

The Love Seat

As Our Readers See It

BUSSTOP SEATS

According to the city engineer, it would not be dignified to have seats at bus stops with a few words of advertising. It's less dignified, my learned friend, to see elderly people and many young mothers with babes in arms, also people, crippled with arthritis standing for sometimes 20 minutes where a seat would be welcome. We will cover up the advertising, I assure you, with smiles and also bless the giver of those seats. Even if we can't buy the product advertised. Be ye kind one to another, the Master said, and this will be kindness and a great example if we will see to it that this shall not be in the hands of one man.

We can also save $40 per seat from our taxes. How stupid can people be? Let's accept the $150 per month and get on with these seats.

"WE LOST A FRIEND"

Our home lost a loyal little friend when our Boston bulldog was run over and killed by a speeding car at 7.30 a.m. Monday last on the Metehosin Road.

Will you please excuse my opinion of the driver of the car who hit and ran. Courtesy must come hard to him, but I would like to take this opportunity to thank the young man who followed on an automobile. He stopped, removed the body to the side of the road, and went to our neighbor and inquired of the owner of the dog.

We appreciated, also, the column in Saturday's Times written by Monte Roberts' wise old dog "Punch." We are going to follow his suggestion.

BOTTLE ON THE SIDEBORD

To anyone brought up in an English home, accustomed to a barrel of beer in the larder and a bottle of whisky in the sideboard cupboard, the liquor laws of Canada seem inexplicable.

Let's wonder, after living in beautiful B.C. for 23 years, that such totally un-British laws should have been accepted. You might be interested to know that though 10 in family, save for my father's glass of beer and whisky for his friends, it was seldom touched. Milk, with all the cream (and oh! what cream!) was our portion.

PUNISHING INTERNATIONAL CRIME

The Pope's proposal to punish major crimes, including war crimes, according to an international penal code, is interesting. The question will be, of course, to get all countries to agree to such a penal code and then to live up to same. To have a better chance to get this done, it certainly will be necessary not to leave out of that code certain major crimes against mankind, which, so far, not only go unpunished, which are even propagandized with the help of many governments.

Sept. 15, under "Nature of the Enemy," Mr. Editor, a quote from the New York Times says: "We are gradually learning that the Communists' program is designed to be more than an attack on men's bodies. It is an attack on their minds and wills and souls. The ingenuity of the tortures that have been devised goes beyond our normal imagination." So far for the rules of the Communists' world. What about the other side? What about churchliness, about the world-wide organization of which that same Pope is the head? Are they not doing the same thing? Attacking the minds, the wills and souls of those, who, for whatever reason, can't resist those attacks? Only the kind of torture for non-complying with the edicts of the churches' high priests is of a different kind, more subtle, but nonetheless real for those who have become subservient to such self-appointed demi-gods. The fears, which have been instilled into those victims—using their man-made Bible as an instrument, however sincerely Mrs. Adela P. Bastin may think that said Bible is of divine origin (Sept. 16)—those fears keep them in the fold, not the faith, the high priests prate about, as long as that faith is not one in our fellow man and in ourselves. As long as mankind is unable to throw off the yoke which these high priests burden it with, the mass of mankind will be like putty in their hands.

That is why the address of Dr. Sidney Smith, president of Toronto University (Times, Sept. 24), is so timely, where he stated "Canada Needs Characters"; where he urged his students to develop "a critical spirit"; to grow into a man or woman "who has the capacity for dissent." Character building is what is needed the world over.

F. H. STAVEMAN.

QUOTING DR. CHISHOLM

May I use just a little space in which to draw your readers' attention to the recent interview given by one of the world's outstanding medical authorities, Dr. Brook Chisholm?

In this interview the famous doctor stresses two vital points which he says people must learn to observe if civilization is to get out of the mess it is in today. One of these points is that people must learn to think for themselves, and the other, which he strictly stresses, is never to teach or to tell children myths or lies about anything.

He states: "Any lie to children about anything complicates their development." And he gives as an example the old lie about Santa Claus coming down chimneys. The learned doctor, who has been director-general of the World Health Organization, said that to have to give up something believed in childhood produces feeling of guilt and of insecurity, and by way of illustration the venerable scientist selected the Santa Claus myth from among a number of equally untrue myths which children up to even 80 years of age are unable to make themselves give up.

The experienced doctor is very wise in pointing out the evil of teaching, as truth, things only believed but not actually known. And many are hoping to have him with us in Victoria for many years to assist in the further teaching of this little-known or practiced truth.

RECALLING PROMISES

A certain political party tried to win votes in the last provincial election by espousing the cause of Christian principles, honesty, integrity. The Hon. Einar Gunderson did not win a seat. Has it not occurred to his conscience, and that of his party, that God honors those who honor Him. There is no white blackness, white lies, false representation, gross exaggeration. A statement is true, or it's a lie.

The Hon. Mr. Gagliardi, speaking in Kamloops, said: "Mr. Gunderson is the most orthodox finance minister in Canada." The very existence of his party is the antithesis to sound finance. Condemnation of orthodox finance, plans to scrap it, are the recognized policy of Social Credit.

It takes a lot of gall to champion the long-term plans of wolves, and at the same time hide in a sheepskin to win votes, in a constituency where financial, economic stability are fully recognized as being dependent on sound, proven, financial policies.

We suggest Mr. Gunderson seek reelection in Similkameen. Give the electors there a chance to have their fourth election within two years. Then ask them who has been responsible for the chaos in this province, which Social Crediters so hypocritically warned the people against.

They boasted, "Social Credit is the only party with the courage to face the facts." Throughout the campaign, as in Oak Bay, they hadn't the courage to stand or fall on the issue of Social Credit.

A Social Credit candidate up-Island condemned other parties for reminding the public of their achievements during many years in office, yet his party boasted that in eight months they had given B.C. more reforms than any other party in 50 years. Just what were those reforms? They had a liquor plan. They kept it hidden until after the election. They had a policy to decontrol milk. It was kept hidden. Why? Because they knew they would not suit everybody, and they were looking for votes. They were, they said, "A government serving all."

Do the timber and mining interests of B.C. consider they are being served by proposed, suicidal increases in taxation?

Action Asked On Re-Selling Doukhobor Land

Government Bill to Name Commissioner

The provincial government hopes to name a B.C. judge as a sole commissioner to conduct an inquiry into methods of re-selling land to the Doukhobors, Attorney-General Robert Bonner informed the Legislature Wednesday.

He made the statement during debate on second reading of a bill providing for appointment of the commissioner. The bill was given second reading and referred to committee.

Randolph Harding (C.F.C. Kaslo-Slocan) said the CCF will not oppose the bill, but is disappointed that the government decided to conduct a further inquiry.

He said the Doukhobor consultative committee's recommendations for disposal of the lands were sound and could have been followed.

"I fail to see how a commission can add anything to the information already in the hands of the government," he said. "This simply slows down progress. We feel the House should now be discussing allotment of the land, not appointment of a commission."

Mr. Harding said he'd like to see a three-man commission instead of one.

EARLY ACTION

CCF Leader Arnold Webster felt the land problem required early action more than further investigation.

He disagreed with a government explanation that the move is in line with the consultative committee's recommendations. "Actually, it's only a step in the direction of the recommendation," he said.

TRUSTEE

The delay which the further inquiry will cause could mean lack of success in dealing with the vexatious problem, he said.

The attorney-general explained that the government is actually the trustee of the land involved and it isn't good for a trustee to construe conditions of his own trust.

"Someone has to examine and adjudicate," he stated.

RESCUED GEOLOGIST GRATEFUL

Wilderness Not As Bad As Post-War Germany

MONTREAL (BUP) — German geologist Dr. Rolf Thienhaus, one of seven men who survived for 39 days in the northern Quebec bush after their plane ran out of gas, planned today to go home but return to Canada when he is fully recovered from his ordeal.

Thienhaus, who has been recuperating here after being rescued on Saturday, prepared to leave for Toronto today. After a week there he will go to his home in Germany.

"I'm coming back though," he said. "I love the country and what I've seen. I think its potential is the greatest of any in the world. No one could possibly imagine the wealth of mineral ores in Ungava."

Thienhaus said the 39 days on lonely Lake Emmanuel weren't as bad as post-war Germany. "I had more to eat than I ever had after the war. We were lucky to get a pound of meat a month in Germany in those days. The 50 partridges we were able to shoot gave us much more than that and we had plenty of vegetables. The big worry was a lack of fat in our diet."

The German geologist expressed amazement at the money the government spent on the search for the party. "Could you give me an estimate on what they must have spent?" he asked. "It must have been tremendous. Why, on gasoline alone they must have spent hundreds of thousands. They tell me they had as many as 30 planes in the air at one time. I'd like to go to Ottawa and thank someone."

Thienhaus discounted any heroism in his role as mushroom selector for the crew. He had to choose between edible mushrooms and poisonous toadstools.

"That's actually not as heroic as it sounds," he laughed. "I wasn't taking any chances on killing myself that way. I know the symptoms and I'd have known in a second if one was poisonous because my heart would have started racing and my pulse would quicken. I never took a big enough bite to kill me, you can bet on that."

SOOKE — Douglas Forrester, Sooke Players' president, announced at the regular meeting of the group that five local organizations had sought its services for assistance in fund-raising campaigns.

It will hold the first of regular weekly study groups Saturday night at the home of W. A. Conder.

$75 ARTIFICIAL KIDNEY FOUND INVALUABLE IN SAVING LIFE

CHICAGO (AP) — A young doctor today told of making an artificial kidney for $75 out of a kitchen pressure cooker and sausage casing.

It helped save a young woman in convulsions and coma due to an error in blood transfusion. Dr. William Y. Inouye of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine told the American College of Surgeons in a prepared paper.

Several hours after the kidney was put to work to purify her blood, she woke up, saw Dr. Inouye eating a sandwich, and said: "Doctor, I'm hungry. He was munching the sandwich to allay his own hunger during the six-hour treatment."

Junkman Haigh Barred From Garbage Film Role

The Victoria Amateur Movie Club is having to rewrite certain phases of a film titled, "A City at Work."

Script changes have become necessary for certain scenes having to do with activity at the garbage wharf. The club was all set to shoot this particular sequence with junkman Harry Haigh as the main figure. But the wharf superintendent objected.

He told film director Colin Fensham that he could not allow Mr. Haigh to act on the garbage wharf, and that if they wanted him in the picture, they'd have to shoot it elsewhere.

City engineer, who was later consulted in connection with the matter, upheld the decision of the superintendent.

OAK BAY CONSIDERING SIGNS ON ALL CROSSWALKS

Oak Bay police commission will consider placing of signs at all crosswalks in the municipality following a meeting of Victoria Kiwanis and the council.

The Kiwanis members, under Ed Mallek, organizer of Kiwanis School patrols, urged "Stop When Occupied" signs for all crosswalks and warning signs for the approaches.

They argued that the signs would be a protection for the motorist as well as children, because, "... it's hard to bring a car to an abrupt stop when a child steps on the roadway."

"We will have signs," promised Reeve P. A. Gibbs. "The police commission will consider how many."

It is believed the guards stopped following diplomats of other countries a long time ago.

KEEPS DEATH AT BAY BY FIXING PLANE IN MID-AIR

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP)—An agile pilot, leaning half out of his plane, lassoed and secured a dangerous landing gear Wednesday hundreds of feet above the ground in a daring manoeuvre, that averted possible death for himself and a companion.

Nicholas Morohovich, 38, of Conneaut Lake, Pa., used two safety belts lashed together to draw up the broken gear, and tie it to a wing strut. Francis Conter, 31, of Adamsville, Pa., piloted the plane and held his friend's legs as Morohovich leaned out the window.

Morohovich gingerly set down the crippled craft at nearby H. B. Handley airport, keeping it tilted as much as possible toward the side with a good wheel.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Coach Billy Reay of the Cougars walked into the coffee shop of the CPR ship, Princess Louise, about midnight, Tuesday and, without breaking his methodical stride, headed for a group of players intent on adding to their caloric count.

"On the ice at 9.30 in the morning," he said.

Walker

He repeated the order at the next table and then, and not until then, relaxed long enough to study a menu, however absentmindedly, as he recalled the 2-1 Cougar defeat by Vancouver Canucks.

A voice, barely audible in the quiet hush which followed, echoed the message almost skeptically:

"At 9.30?"

Earlier the old sweats had been explaining to the new hands that one could sleep until "they roust you out" and not to pay too much attention to the sign which read:

"It is requested that staterooms be vacated by 8.30."

But not this night.

"Does this go on all the time?" a rookie to the west this year was heard to remark. "Do you always practise so early in the morning after a road game the night before?"

"Yeah, if we lose," a vet answered wryly, "and, incidentally, you got to sleep in the top bunk tonight."

This was opening night, the rookies were getting acclimated and with their indoctrination came the knowledge that Reay won't take defeat lightly.

Reay was dead serious which probably accounts for the rumor mill grinding out the news that the new Cougar coach is a tough task master.

But their were moments of lighter vein. Fred Hutchinson was his usual efficient self, especially in his accustomed manner of paying off bridge debts, not to mention other sundry duties such as counting noses in the bus roll-call, distributing stateroom accommodation and handing out meal money.

Even club owner Lester Patrick qualified for the toast and jam post-game morsel. Colin Kilburn who sat next to "The Fox" (Hutchinson's endearing term for Lester), admitting slyly after he ordered the same (with tea):

"Yeah, Lester's always looking over my shoulder."

Colin, it will be recalled, was required to wear a sweat jacket as an antidote for his over indulgence in the use of a butter knife last year. Not so this season, however, as Colin's trimmed torso testifies.

Trainer George Wilkinson had a complaint, which is normal, but it tied in with seasonal affliction. The Vancouver trainer politely informed George that no towels or soap were available to the Cougars (the usual courtesy extended by the home team). George, in turn, and equally as polite, informed the Vancouver trainer that he wanted towels—which he got.

A small boy was dispatched for the soap.

There were the usual quips about the long walk from the dock lobby to the ship, the ship itself, the possibility of half-fare because of the long walk, and the fog—Vancouver fog.

"What room are you in," Reg Abbott quietly asked a Cougar fledgling.

The number given, Reg replied:

"That's right under the fog horn."

"Where's this room?" another freshmen to the Western Hockey League inquired innocently, quoting a number.

"Why, that's where they keep the foghorn," answered Reg, springing the trap.

Yep, the season is officially under way.

To Reay, the idle moments of leisure and banter are part and parcel of the game, but basically the Cougars are here to play hockey and hockey they'll play.

The ominous tone of his remark "on the ice at 9.30" beat a rhythmic tune with the churning of the ship's propellers.

And it will be repeated, it need be, judging by Reay's expression.

Five Men Charged In Race Fraud Case

LONDON (Reuters) — Five men were charged Wednesday with substituting a fast horse for a slow one in an attempted $100,000 Bath race-track swindle last July and with a subsequent attempt to bribe a British peer to hamper Scotland Yard's investigations.

The prosecution claimed in court here the five men had set up a dummy bookmaking firm and painstakingly built up its able to spread large bets safely with other bookmakers through Britain.

After a four-month build-up, said prosecutor Maxwell Turner, they stood to win $100,000 when their horse Santo Amaro, a ringer for the slower Franciscal, romped home first at 10-to-1 odds in the opening race at Bath July 16.

Turner told the court he would prove they placed $10,000 in bets on "Franciscal" then took the phone of their bookmaking establishment off the hook. Meanwhile a cut telephone cable at Bath barred their frantic contracting bookies from reaching the track to lay off the bets and bring down the 10-to-1 starting odds on the horse.

The five men are Gomer Charles, 46, a bookmaker; Maurice Williams, 47, registered owner of the two horses; Harry Kately, 42, book-maker; William Rooke, 57, racehorse owner; and Robert Dill,

56, horse breeder. The case, prepared after an intensive Scotland Yard investigation, was adjourned until Friday after the prosecution's opening charge Wednesday.

Leonard Phillips, 31, a rag merchant, was convicted last month of cutting the telephone cable and sentenced to three months in jail.

Turner charged Wednesday that Charles had approached

Lord Elliot, son of the Earl of St. Germans, with an offer of $1,400 to interfere in the case.

The peer, himself a bookmaker, was asked to pose as a member of the fashionable Jockey

Club, controller of British flat racing, and press for speedy prosecution of Phillips by the Bath police, the prosecutor said.

Turner said Charles figured that "if the case against

Phillips was disposed of at once, it would hamper the inquiries of Scotland Yard and therefore prevent the prosecution of anyone other than Phillips.

The lord, said the prosecutor,

"very properly declined to have anything to do with the matter."

Bath track officials have withheld payment on the bets, pending outcome of the trial.

Times Athlete of Month Honored

Whitey Severson and awards of merit were practically synonymous during the recent lacrosse season, and the list is still growing. Severson, named winner of the Times athlete of the month poll during the first three months of its existence, Wednesday caught up on his silver collection by being awarded Times trophies for the months of August and September. The occasion was the testimonial dinner to the Shamrocks by the Memorial Arena commission at the Victoria Curling Club. (Times photo by Strickland.)

NHL President Expects Keen Race, More Fans

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League

swings into the 1953-54 campaign tonight, a campaign already marked by the inevitable brave talk of all coaches and the determination of fall-flower rookies to escape the big-time blight.

President Clarence Campbell

looks for unusually close competition — and more customers.

"The fundamental thing about a successful race is to have balanced competition," said Campbell. "I think we will have it more so than for some years. If that prediction is correct, attendance will almost au-tomatically increase; that's been a proven fact, at least up to now."

The opening action is on two fronts. Montreal Canadiens,

Stanley Cup champions, are hosts to Chicago Black Hawks

while New York Rangers visit

Detroit Red Wings, first-place team last season.

By Sunday night, all teams will have played. Boston Bruins are the last to get into action.

Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Black Hawks in Toronto

Saturday night and Detroit plays in Montreal. The Sunday scheduled: Montreal at Boston,

Toronto at Detroit, New York at Chicago.

President Campbell's optimism is borne out by training camp reports, acceptable with or without a grain of salt.

The new season—again calling for 70 games for each club brings two changes in coaches. King Clancy, with a long and colorful career as player, referee and minor league coach, takes over from

Joe Primeau as pilot of Toronto. Manager Frank Boucher of New York, who served as coach following his playing days as centre star, returns to the bench, this time in the dual role of manager-coach.

Dodgers Should Repeat in '54

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—If the American League is in bad shape from an overdose of Yankees, the rival National League doesn't have much to look forward to, either.

The Dodgers, even in defeat, still dominate the older circuit, as completely as the Yankees do theirs. The baseball expert who doesn't do a perfect job picking the pennant winners next spring will have to be either a rank sentimentalist or a resident of Milwaukee.

If anything, Chuck Dressen's sluggers figure to make a greater shambles of their league than they did this year, providing there are no crippling injuries to key personnel. They could even win a world series for a change if Alie Reynolds should decide to quit pitching for the Yanks, as he is mildly threatening to do.

There was a big fellow around the Brooklyn dressing room during the recent play-off, name of Don Newcombe, and he will be back pitching for Dressen next spring. He completes his army tour in February and will hop from camp right to the Dodgers' training quarters at Vero Beach. If seven other league clubs needed bad news, that's it.

Newcombe said he had been pitching fairly often and was rearing in to get back on the Dodger payroll. He looked his old smooth self as he fired a few across in pre-game batting practice.

All of which means that instead of having only one 20-game winner, Carl Erskine, on his staff this year and only a 15-gamer, Joe Black, the previous season, Dressen can reasonably expect the Erskine career with the Canadiens, has been given new wingers. Lach will make the plays for Bernie and delivered, open defense of their Stanley Cup championship tonight against the pesky Chicago Black Hawks, who took them to seven games in last spring's National Hockey League playoff semifinal.

The 23-year-old Bellevue climaxed three years of negotiations last Saturday when he signed a five-year contract, the largest ever given a rookie "by a city block," according to general manager Frank Selke of the Canadiens. The sensational French-Canadian youngster performed for the Canadiens against the NHL all-stars the same night and set up Maurice "Rocket" Richard for the only Montreal goal as the stars won 3-1.

Beliveau will be with Richard again tonight with Eddie (Spider) Mazur, another rookie, from Victoria, on the left wing. Coach Dick Irvin decided to leave the two French-Canadian stars together and hockey observers claim they'll provide the greatest scoring punch since Howie Morenz and Aureli Joliat wore the red, white and blue Canadiens' uniform.

Elmer Lach, the veteran centre, who pivoted for Richard during almost his entire 13-year career with the Canadiens, has been given new wingers. Lach will make the plays for Bernie and delivered, open defense of their Stanley Cup championship tonight against the pesky Chicago Black Hawks, who took them to seven games in last spring's National Hockey League playoff semifinal.

DRESSSEN, NOREN FINED FOR SERIES OUTBURSTS

NEW YORK (UP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick revealed today that he had fined Brooklyn manager Chuck Dressen and Yankee outfielder Irv Noren $100 each for separate outbursts during the world series.

Dressen drew his fine for arguing with plate umpire Art Gore on Phil Rizzuto's foul pop in the fourth game of the series at Ebbets Field.

Noren, who walked as a pinch-hitter in the third game, was fined for displaying his temper after the official scorer ruled that Dodger second baseman Junior Gilliam had committed an error on Billy Martin's first-inning smash during the sixth game at Yankee Stadium.

Yankees Get $8,280, Dodgers Take $6,178

NEW YORK (UP)—The champion New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers cut up the richest World Series melon in baseball history today as each full winning share hit an all-time high of $8,280.68 and $6,178.42, another record.

Each club voted 29 full shares in splitting the total players' sum of $691,341.61, largest pool in World Series history, thanks to the increased price of seats plus added revenue from radio and television receipts.

Each full Yankee share was $1,508.63 more than the previous largest winning share of $6,772.05 collected by the Cleveland Indians in the 1948 World Series with the Boston Braves, while each Dodger share was $1,227.39 more than the previous high losing share of $4,951.03 picked up by the Giants after dropping the 1951 World Series to the Yankees.

Both clubs remembered men who played with them earlier in the year but were not around for the pennant-clinching. Pitcher Ewell Blackwell, released by the Yankees in mid-season, was given half a share worth $4,140.34, while Ralph Branca, traded by the Dodgers to Detroit in June, was voted a quarter share of $1,544.61.

Infielder Gerry Coleman, who rejoined the Yankees in August, was given a one-third share of $2,760.21, the same sum voted to infielder Jim Bredeweser and outfielder Art Schult, each of whom were with the club only part of the season.

Pitcher Irv Palica, who returned from the army in late July, was voted a quarter share by Brooklyn, while Dodger pitcher Don Newcombe, in the service all season, was given a cash award of $500. The Yankees made no such provision for infielder Bobby Brown or pitcher Tom Morgan, who, like Newcombe, were in the army all year.

The Dodgers voted a three-quarter share, worth $4,633.81, to outfielder Dick Williams, acquired after the season started, and half shares of $3,089.22 to batboy Charles Digiovanna and clubhouse man John Griffin.

Willie Miranda, obtained by the Yankees from the Browns during June, received a three-quarter share of $6,210.50, as did pitcher Bill Miller and clubhouse man Peter Sheehy.

No Player Shortage for Tars

By DENNY BOYD

There is an air of grim determination at practices of the Navy Commercial Hockey League team.

With the season scheduled to open Wednesday night, Navy meeting Dick Irving's Victoria V's, the sailors are skating under the whip cracked by playing-coach Norm Jones who is working his charges overtime in an effort to round them into shape for the opener.

"Our team just isn't in physical shape right now," states manager Lieut.-Cmdr. Frank Saunders. "Wednesday night we'll have 16 players dressed but that's about all we can say right now."

There were a few obviously overpadded waistlines at the Memorial Arena practice Wednesday and majority of the players were physically spent when Jones called a halt to the hour-long session.

However Jones has a nucleus of last year's club, several players from former Navy teams and a crop of youngsters. Since the first practice, some 45 players have turned out, many of them having since been cut from the squad.

Without doubt, Navy's strongest position will be in goal, where Jones will perform. Not an acrobat but a steady performer with safe hands and quick reflexes, Jones is a steady influence.

Wolcast has been confined to hospitals since 1936 from brain injuries he suffered in the ring.

He won the lightweight title February 22, 1910, at Port Richmond, Calif., when he knocked out battling Nelson in the 40th round of a bout considered as one of boxing's greatest.

Eighteen holes of medal play for the Bob Thompson Memorial trophy are scheduled to be played at Uplands Golf Club Monday. Entry forms for the competition must be registered with the club secretary by Saturday night.

Judging of the main show will commence each morning at 10 and continue until 10 at night.

Bowden will handle judging for the first show Friday. Victor Williams of Vancouver will judge on Saturday.

Fifteen dogs will compete in the obedience trials on both days. Mrs. Robin Johnson of Vancouver will judge on the first day while Wally Bowden will officiate on the second. Trials are scheduled to start at 5 each evening.

A large entry has been received for the Victoria City Kennel Club's championship shows and obedience trials to be held in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden Friday and Saturday.

Included in the entry list are five Weimaraners from a Washington kennel. These dogs are used for tracking as well as hunting and are often referred to as "the Grey Ghosts."

A Rhodesian Ridgeback, a dog used for lion hunting, is also entered.

Dr. Franklin Garrett, hospital superintendent, said Wolcast was rallying "very favorably" and would be taken off the critical list soon if he continues to improve.

The 65-year-old ring veteran, who held the crown 43 years ago, was stricken with the respiratory infection after a recent attack of influenza.

With burly, hostile Doug Johnson now serving on the east coast, Ted Audette will be the only defenseman returning from last year's club. A hard checker and tricky skater, Audette has a good slap shot from the point.

A veteran who played for Navy three seasons ago, Roy Bird, is back again but is carrying a trifle more weight than in his last hitch here. John Noyes, a halfback with Navy's football club, is also contesting a spot on the blue-line corps.

Jones had three forward lines working Wednesday and the last of the three appeared to be a unit of holdovers, Orville Coulter centreing big Paul Wamnamaker and chunky Joe Wood. Wood, although he, too, appears a bit overweight, was one of Navy's most consistent scorers last season and one of the league's top left wingers. However, there is a possibility that slender Del Brown may be fitted into this line.

The sailors may have a bantam-weight line composed of John Bond, Spud Larter and Bus Haugh, all of whom have played here before.

Two years ago, after a mediocre season, Bond, all 140 pounds of him, became a ball of fire in the playoffs when Navy swept to victory.

It is not known if Neil Standley, a flashy skater and prolific scorer and Dave "Bunker" Hill, another fine left winger, will be available this season as drafts may take them elsewhere.

Archie Courtinall and Jack Quinn, civilians who will be eligible for the club as members of the Navy reserve, are working out with the team. Quinn was with Army last year while Courtinall has had experience in the hot prairie junior circuits.

Club officials do not intend to decide on their final roster until Tuesday, the day of their last practice and eve of their first game.

Wolcast's Condition Improved

CAMARILLO, Calif. (UP)—One-time world's lightweight boxing champion Ad Wolcast, critically ill from a respiratory infection, was reported "much improved" today at Camarillo State Hospital.

Dr. Franklin Garrett, hospital superintendent, said Wolcast was rallying "very favorably" and would be taken off the critical list soon if he continues to improve.

City Driving Habits Bared

By DON INGHAM, Times Automotive Editor

The mysterious car that followed Joe Spivak through all the twists and turns of his voyage home was not that of a policeman, nor a crook, nor a homeless soul with nothing better to do.

It was driven by Robert Doble, city traffic engineer, who was finding out what route Joe used between his work and home.

"I often follow people for just that purpose," he said in an interview on the city's traffic problems. "Sometimes I ask people outright about their routes. They are usually very co-operative."

MACHINE COUNTS

Such informal investigation, though, merely supplements solid research into the movement of cars in Victoria, and the improvements that must be made constantly to keep traffic flowing freely.

Every six months Mr. Doble conducts a machine count of vehicles on the major routes, and can tell you their peak loads, average loads, and minimums for each day, month, and year.

Where machine counts are impractical he makes hand-tally checks.

"Our two separate problems here are parking and traffic flow," he said. "If too much parking is granted it defeats its purpose—one cannot use the streets."

PURPOSE DEFEATED

"If not enough parking is granted, then people can drive through town without hindrance, but that doesn't help them. They reason they came to town because they wanted to stop in town."

He explained that the Victoria city centre is an island and that drivers of necessity must leave the city by the same route they entered.

"Freeways are of little help to us here," he said.

Mr. Doble meets the problem with through streets, traffic lights, and relief of over-burdened routes with alternate thoroughfares.

For instance, broadening and resurfacing of Blanshard Street between Pandora and Hillside took much of the traffic load from Douglas and Quadra, and takes more constantly as it becomes better known.

ACCIDENT FILE

"After we've opened a route like that we don't even check it for a month," Mr. Doble said. "People aren't used to it before that time."

A sure guide to traffic conditions is Mr. Doble's file that includes information on almost every intersection in the city. For the last two years police have sent him their accident reports, and each month he files them himself in order to keep a proper check on occurrences.

'Safer' Muffler May Be Illegal

Under fire in police court Friday will be steel-packed muffler, far right. Others are conventional models which depend on empty space to dampen noise. Third cutaway shows steel shavings-packed under 2,700 pressure as a noise-catcher.

SAFER MOTORING

By JACK SMITH

Changes Boost Action Of Chrysler Products

INSTALLMENT 5
The older Chrysler products—Dodge, Plymouth, etc.—though fine, rugged engines, have not received much attention from the "speed shops" and so, with the exception of heads, dual manifolds, and cams, there has been little to offer.

In order to plane off the head, plasticine should be placed on valve heads and motor turned over to see what room is available.

In general, and applicable to all engines:

1. Increase the port diameter as much as the casting will stand;
2. Increase manifold to same size;
3. Use dual carburetors or even one per port individually for maximum revolutions;
4. Use high-lift cam with overlap for punch and acceleration.

Cooler Running

5. High lift and long overlap with very early inlet opening and late exhaust closing, and early exhaust opening and late inlet closing, for power at high revolutions;
6. The advantage of racing pistons lies in their strength and thick heads that keep down piston temperature.
7. Always polish piston tops and inside of cylinder head until you can see your face in them—valve tops too. It is really worthwhile.
8. Soft valve springs cause broken valve stems, so be sure you have lots of tension—with 2" valves at least 150 pounds on the stem when valve is seated for a high-revving motor.
9. Always be sure you have .012 more ring gap with a 3" piston, otherwise it will probably pull the head off.
10. Nothing is "good enough" in a fast motor.

Decrease Drag

Adjust bearings so that the motor will rotate with a gentle twist and no drag (this with rings not installed). Lap valves to seats until perfect. Set tappets accurately. Reset timing of distributor until ping starts at 15 miles per hour on a hard pull, but fades before 20 miles.

Use SAE 30-40 oil of top quality only. It will cost more per quart, but will maintain your oil pressure much better when hot, and is a lifesaver on bearings.

An additive such as Liqui-Moly or Bardahl will greatly help the hard-rubbing parts such as cam lobes.

The new overhead V-8 motors look as though they are going to drive the "flat-head" types out of business for "sprint" cars and race boats.

High-Speed Parts

The speed shops are building equipment for the V-8 overheads, and manifolds, four-barrel carburetors, fancy racing cams, and pistons are available for most of them.

I ran across a De Soto V-8 in Seattle with racing pistons, Chevrolet roller tappets and cams, Offenhauser valve springs, Stewart Helborn fuel injection to replace carburetors, and two sets of pistons—9:1 ratio for gasoline and long races, and 18:1 for alcohol and sprints.

You will use twice as much alcohol as gasoline, so the tank will not hold enough for a long race.

Next week we will start to build a roadster from scratch.

Check Distributor Cap for Cracking

Distributor caps occasionally break, split, or crack to admit water or dirt and cause a short circuit.

Sometimes the break is tiny and hard to see, thus making trouble difficult to locate.

In any ignition trouble, inspection of the cap should be standard operating procedure.

New Muffler Subject of Court Case

Legality of a new, long-life style of car muffler, presently being sold throughout Victoria, may be decided in city police court Friday.

Three youths face charges of unlawfully operating cars "... without having same equipped with an exhaust muffler consisting of a series of pipes or chambers so proportioned and constructed as to allow the exhaust gases ... to expand and cool to a degree of noiseless expulsion ..."

In short, the mufflers were considered inadequate.

At least one of the offending vehicles was fitted with two mufflers and two tail-pipe extensions.

Likely to be decided is whether the two mufflers, known as steel-packed mufflers, or the tail pipe extension, reduce engine noise as much as do stock mufflers or whether the deep-throated noise they produce is contrary to the act.

A distributor here, A. E. Appleton, maintains his steel-pack mufflers are legal elsewhere and should be here.

CONSIDERED SAFER

He argues that Vancouver police and testing station have endorsed the steel-pack mufflers as safer. They last as long as the car without danger of exhaust fumes entering the car, he says.

The trouble might lie with the tail pipe extensions employed on some cars. When of a type sufficiently large, these "boom-cans" as they are often called, can act as echo chambers and exaggerate an engine roar.

Mr. Appleton is scheduled to testify for one of the accused. Also scheduled to appear as witnesses are two senior officials of the Motor Vehicle Branch, a sergeant of the RCMP, and a city police sergeant.

Mr. Appleton says the latter four gave some degree of approval to the mufflers before he placed them on sale.

Industrial Designer Criticizes U.S. Cars

The man most responsible for modern American industrial design says "that big, shiny, new car" is "gross, heavy, massive, and impossibly unwieldy."

"I'm fed up with the American monsters," said Raymond Loewy, French-born dean of American industrial designers after inspecting the 40th international auto exhibition at Paris.

American cars of today, Loewy told their manufacturers, are "top-heavy and far too long."

"Where can you park them?" he asked. "In fact, what can you do with them?"

LOST FEEL OF ROAD
Loewy said Americans have lost the feel of the road, and that the next move must be toward greater roadability.

He pointed to a row of European cars as examples of what he wants to see in automobile design.

"They're lovely," he approved. "What's more, you can drive them easily. They won't stand on end if you take a curve at high speed. They hug the road. They feel the road. If European manufacturers manage to bring down their prices, the Americans had better watch out."

Automobiles from 15 nations were lined up bumper to bumper at the show, and illustrated the trade battle now in progress in Europe to capture the low-priced "baby" passenger car market. Great Britain, Germany, Italy, and France are current leaders in the field.

Fleeced-lined and cozy-as-can-be, Viceroy Snow Mittens are dipped in latex (rubber in its purest form) to keep the wind and water out, the warmth in. They stay pliable at very low temperatures — good news for young snow-balls everywhere! Good news for mothers, too — because with waterproof Viceroy Mittens, there's no need to have several pairs of mittens drying after outdoor play. And notice this, mothers, Viceroy Snow Mittens have new, longer wristing for extra comfort. Look for them in red or brown (some with Cowboy or Indian designs), and sizes small, medium, large and now extra large for junior adults.

LICENSE FEES REDUCED

Slow-Pokes Target Of New Regulations

Slow poke drivers, a traffic hazard on B.C.'s highways, can be ordered to speed up by police under an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act introduced in the Legislature Wednesday night by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

The bill outlaws driving at such a slow speed that it impedes the normal flow of traffic, except when the reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or in compliance with the law. The provision was a surprise inclusion in the bill which reduces car license fees 10 per cent, promised earlier by the government.

The license reduction will be about $2.50 for most cars—the 3,000 to 4,000-pound class which now pays $25.

The reduction is effective for the next licensing year, and applies only to passenger cars, motorcycles and trailers.

Other provision of the bill:

1. Magistrates to have power to suspend, instead of merely recommending, suspensions of drivers' licenses in charges of dangerous driving under the Criminal Code.
2. Superintendent of motor vehicles given power to suspend licenses of drivers with poor records under B.C.'s new "driver education program."
3. Surrendering of license of scrapped cars made mandatory.
4. Car dealers won't have to get special permit to take cars from warehouses or freighters to salesrooms.
5. Farmers won't have to obtain special permit to tow machinery behind tractors on the highway.

DRAGNET OUT

ers unmercifully even after they agreed to do what he told them. While Greenlease worked frantically with Eisenhower to get the ransom money, his wife, Virginia, 45, had established contact with the kidnapper by telephone, it was disclosed today.

Robert Ledterman, 69, the Tulsa, Okla., business associate of Greenlease who with Norbert O'Neill, another Greenlease partner, formed the "ransom team" that delivered the duffel bag, told the Kansas City Star the story of the secret negotiations.

Twice, he said, Mrs. Greenlease talked to one of the kidnappers, trying to establish positive identification of little Bobby. That was on Friday. She asked the kidnappers to ask Bobby two questions which would prove his identity. One was the name of the driver of a Greenlease car, the other was about a play-block model of the Eiffel Tower Bobby had made.

Child Would Not Answer Questions

The kidnapper said he would ask the child and call back. He telephoned in an hour and said Bobby was unco-operative, would not answer questions.

But family hopes soared, regardless. The Greenleases decided to pay the money demanded in letters and other telephone calls. Ledterman said he talked to the kidnapper every day, sometimes 10 minutes at a time.

He made three attempts to deliver the ransom. The first was a failure because he and O'Neill found it impossible to follow instructions. When they got home, the kidnapper called angrily and said "You didn't do it."

On the second try, "a night run," they went to one point, (the FBI has forbidden Ledterman from telling exact times and places) and picked up a letter. Then they went to another point. Then to a rendezvous. They dropped the 85-pound bag.

They returned home. The kidnapper called a few minutes later. He said he didn't get the money. When informed they had left it at the right place, he said for them to pick it up and await instructions. They did.

In his story to St. Louis police, Hall had said he planned and carried through a "test rendezvous" with the ransom bearer.

Then came the final try. It succeeded. Early one morning the kidnapper telephoned, and twice later that day called again. The result of the calls found Ledterman in a hotel telephone booth at 17.30 that night. The kidnapper — "very jittery" — told him where to leave the money. Ledterman left it.

Returning to the Greenlease mansion, he got another call. The kidnapper said the money had been received.

"I'd like to meet you some day," Ledterman told him. "You never will," the voice replied.

Ledterman said that, under instructions, he and O'Neill went to a town to await telegraphed word about the safe return of Bobby. They stayed in the town two days, but of course word never came.

Hall, after his arrest, identified the town as Pittsburg, Kan.

The ordinary house gas meter is still the same basic design that was invented in 1844.

Socred Rebel Bert Price Criticizes Government Policy

GOVERNMENT DEFEAT ON BILL WRONG SAYS SOCRED MEMBER

A government should be defeated only on a non-confidence vote, not simply on defeat of a government bill, Bert Price (SC, Vancouver-Burrard) said in the Legislature Wednesday.

"I'm sure this would result in unrestrained discussion of bills, and that would mean better legislation for B.C.," the MLA said.

Mr. Price voted against his own government last spring on the Rolston Formula on school financing, the issue which brought defeat of the government on the floor of the House.

"I question if there can be complete freedom of expression when a member's vote against a bill could defeat his government," said Mr. Price. "On the other hand, members of the opposition often vote against a good bill merely to show non-support of the government in power."

Labor Board 'Withering' Says Island CCF Member

The provincial government was to report back today to Mr. Wicks.

He felt two inquiries into the dispute would conflict. About 3,000 lumber workers are on strike.

Mr. Strachan said the labor committee could check to see if everything possible is being done to bring about settlement in the strike.

The Labor Relations Board, he added, is being allowed to "wither" by the government. "Under the old system the LRB would have had both sides around the table by now," he said.

He said the conciliation officer sent to the district has made no progress.

Mr. Bonner said the LRB is not being allowed to wither as Mr. Strachan contended. It's as diligent in its duties as ever, he said.

But, he pointed out, the LRB's best efforts last summer were not good enough to settle a similar strike.

Check-Off Law Promise Would End Gold Strike

TORONTO (BUP) — A top union official awaited a reply today to his offer to shelve striking gold miners' checkoff demands if the Ontario government undertook to enact check-off legislation at the next session.

C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CLC) made the proposal aimed at settling Northern Ontario and Quebec's long-drawn mine strike at a meeting last night where he faced a barrage of questions from students.

Speaking to the CCF club at the University of Toronto's University College, he explained that the proposed legislation would make it necessary for employers to check-off union dues from wages of employees requesting this service if more than 50 per cent of the workers, voting by secret ballot, favored the plan.

Checkoff is the key issue in the dispute which has thrown some 5,500 miners out of work in the two-province Noranda-Porcupine area. Some of the companies refused to negotiate wage demands unless the check-off was dropped.

12 INJURED IN FREAK ACCIDENT

SWEET HOME, Ore. (AP) — A loaded logging truck, its driver dead at the wheel, careened down a mountain highway Wednesday and crashed head-on into a bus, injuring 12 persons. The bus was hurled from the highway 50 feet down a canyon. Huge Douglas fir logs sheered the cab from the logging truck then plunged after the bus, battering its top.

On the long-standing Marpole Bridge issue, he said: "I would say to the honorable minister of public works that it is your bridge and what are you going to do about it?"

On Health and Welfare Minister Eric Martin's policy for the Boys' Industrial School at Coquitlam, he said: "There is no corrective treatment (at Bisco) and they don't live anything close to a normal life. At present, this school is being operated as a kindergarten for the penitentiary."

He also said employees of some government departments treat the taxpayers like "serfs" and should be weeded out and fired.

Fisheries Department Nets Six Boats Without Licenses

Special to the Times
CAMPBELL RIVER—Police court was crowded here Wednesday as 48 commercial fishermen filed past Magistrate P. E. Lewis to pay fines of $6 and $3 costs for fishing without licenses.

All pleaded guilty. The men, representing crews of six skippers, were apprehended Tuesday while fishing for herring at Deepwater Bay, north of Seymour Narrows. Charges were laid by Fisheries Inspector F. C. Shaughnessy.

Inspector F. C. Shaughnessy.

Norman Fidler, skipper of the ABC Packers vessel Dolina, said the fisheries department had been "somewhat arbitrary," because in previous years the men had secured their licenses from the first patrol boat encountered.

Other boats were owned by North Shore Packers, Nelson Bros., B.C. Packers, Frank Mal-

Korean-Crisis Controls Dropped By Ottawa

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government today ended the last of its Korean-crisis controls on the domestic sales and use of strategic materials.

Defense Production Minister C. D. Howe announced the revocation of the 1951 order requiring government approval for every domestic sale of nickel by producers.

Partial controls remain in effect covering copper, some copper and brass products and aluminum. But the controls only require reporting to the government for statistical purposes and do not limit domestic purchases of the products.

Howe's announcement said the revocation of the nickel order was made possible by the termination of the International Materials Conference. As a member of the conference, which has been dissolved, Canada turned over its full nickel production to the conference of free nations which in turn allocated world supplies.

IN THE HOUSE

By GORDON FORBES

The present provincial government isn't any different than past regimes when it comes to calling for debate on important legislation late at night when most members are too tired to participate fully.

Premier Bennett kept the House sitting until about 12.45 a.m. to debate the new taxation on logging and mining company profits. The debate lasted more than three hours.

He refused to accept a motion to adjourn the debate.

The MLA's have a long day. They have committee meetings first thing in the morning, afternoon and night sittings. In between they are scurrying around the departments taking care of local matters in their own ridings.

Debate after midnight, therefore, isn't as intelligent as it is when the members are fresh.

Gordon Gibson (Lib., Lillooet), doesn't like Premier Bennett turning his back on him in the House when he's criticizing him. "And you can turn your chair around and look at me when I'm talking," the Herculian MLA snapped at the premier.

Later, when the premier was sitting back in his chair with his eyes closed, Mr. Gibson belittled:

"I hope I'm speaking loud enough to wake up the premier."

The MLA, a logging operator for 36 years, doesn't like the government's forest management policy.

"The word 'perpetuity' shouldn't be allowed to be uttered in a church—not even a place like this," he said.

Public Works Minister P. A. Gagliardi came up with the most scathing criticism of an opposition member's speech in the Legislature Tuesday.

The minister referred to the address of P. A. Gibbs, (Lib., Oak Bay), as "vindictive, vituperative, vinegar-soaked and acid tongued."

But Mr. Gagliardi wasn't disappointed in the speech, he said. "You get carrots out of a carrot patch and mud out of a mud hole," he stated.

Mr. Gibbs' speech also drew some acid remarks from Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers.

He referred to the Liberal's attack as "puny stings" and likened them to "the harmless buzzing of a gadfly or mosquito."

The minister didn't like Mr. Gibbs' inference that the government is passing secret orders-in-council.

"The conscience of the Liberals, which passed hundreds of secret orders, is coming to the surface," he said. "This government has passed no secret orders."

Mr. Sommers' statement about the opposition tactics in the last election covered a mighty lot of ground.

Said he: "... the government was subjected collectively, individually and personally to the most malicious type of attack found in the history of all politics."

Liberal Leader Laing is the favorite target for all Socrads, especially the cabinet benches. Mr. Sommers' contribution: "(He) made a notable contribution to the great gallery of useless and inane questions."

Jaycees Hope to Double Membership

A membership drive aimed at doubling the size of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, heads a list of activities for 1953-54, outlined today by Jaycee president, Jack Ledger.

The campaign for new members will be directed by Boyd Moore.

In the planning stages are an enlarged Christmas party for children of the Protestant Orphanage under Bruce Dawson and an improved Christmas lighting contest under director, Frank Mannix.

Floor space is already being sold in preparation for next year's B.C. Products Fair, under director Ira Hill and the traffic safety committee has enlarged its program. As well as maintaining sales of safety tape, the committee has received city council approval to a plan to place safety signs on signal lights throughout the city.

A fishing derby is set for October 18 at Cowichan Bay when an annual trophy and other prizes will be awarded. In charge is house committee director, Norm Johnson.

Youth development director, Jim Nicol, is presently supervising seeding of the Little League Ball Park. Eight teams are expected to take part this year and will be drawn from a larger area.

Prior to the December elections, mayoralty candidates will direct action planned to expose Communist elements in the community.

JURY TOLD CAR GOING 100 MPH IN FATAL CRASH

Two Vancouver businessmen whose high-powered Jaguar roadster plunged from the Island Highway at 100 miles per hour met death accidentally, according to the verdict of a Courtenay coroner's jury.

The accident occurred near the Miracle Beach road, 14 miles north of Courtenay, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m. The inquest was held Wednesday.

Killed almost instantly in the crash were Arthur R. Brown and Walter E. Haley of the Brown Fraser Company Ltd., Vancouver.

Frank R. Rainbow and Calvin Smith of the B.C. Forest Service estimated the car's speed prior to the crash at 100 miles per hour.

It traveled 400 feet beyond the first skid mark on the road surface, according to the RCMP, snapped a power pole that caused a blackout in the district, and carried a 500-pound boulder about 60 feet.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Someone is going to have to speak to Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast.

Or, if Admiral Hibbard is not available, at least to Commodore Kenneth Dyer, Commodore of Barracks, HMCS Naden. It is obvious the boys in blue have a grave deficiency in their diet.

In fact, it is even indicated they are in danger of starving.

Evidence of this is readily available to any person who wishes to examine the forearm of a gentleman named Ray Ramsay.

Mr. Ramsay, a backfielder for the junior football team from Oak Bay, emerged from last Saturday's game with the Navy, displaying a distinct set of tooth marks in aforesaid arm.

I appeal to Admiral Hibbard and Commodore Dyer to immediately increase the ration of salt pork and hardtack issued to the sailors at Naden.

It is too much to expect the citizens of Victoria to continue to provide 'tween meal snacks for the starving matelots.

On the other hand, nothing is too good for our navy. Possibly we should add a new division to the Community Chest, which would provide salt and pepper at all football games.

Speaking of food (I think we have been speaking of food), please lend a compassionate ear to the plight of a constituent who is convinced medical science is nothing but a machiavellian conspiracy to send him to his grave, a victim of acute frustration.

This constituent reports both he and his wife have had recourse, recently, to a renowned physician.

And the medical genius has prescribed a diet for each of them, designed to give them a long life.

For the wife, he has ordered a bottle of beer or stout before each meal, followed by a large steak or great slices from a succulent roast, or fowl of any description plus assorted vegetables. Also, rich desserts, and between-meal snacks whenever desired.

For the husband, this man of medicine has decreed no beer or alcohol of any kind, salads, and approximately two ounces of meat per day. Naturally, nothing between meals.

"Oh death," moans the constituent, "where is thy sting?"

In yesterday's paper was a picture of Tom Uphill, surrounded by a delegation of barmaids-to-be.

This I fail to understand.

If they had been Tea Shoppe hostesses, now...

More than a quarter-way up with the newly-formed National Defense Employees' Association, John E. Carey, vice-president, has announced.

The new association was set up to combine civil servants and hourly-paid workers in army, navy and air force establishments.

Thieves who broke into the Haultain Meat Market, 2007 Fernwood, during the night stole a small amount of change from the cash register and about five cartons of cigarettes, Lou Merriam, proprietor, reported to city police this morning. Entry was gained by forcing the rear door.

Placed with the name plate on the gate at Lokier Gardens, Thomas I. Lokier thanked the Oak Bay Parks Board in a letter read to Wednesday's council meeting.

The Oak Bay rose garden was named after Mr. Lokier because he has devoted time, effort and money to the civic beauty spot. The name plate was put up in time for his 85th birthday.

Mr. Lokier's letter included a cheque for $100 to buy more shrubs for the garden.

Saanich firemen quickly extinguished a fire that broke out in a shed housing an oil furnace at the Victoria Auto Court, 99 George Road West, around 7:30 a.m. today. Fire was confined to an attic of the small building.

There should be realism in civil defense drills when latest recruits for the course don their helmets and overalls.

Signed to appear once a week for instruction at the Cormorant Street CD headquarters is the complete staff of the Totem Theatre Company.

Walter John Tribe, 291 1/2 Island Highway, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of careless driving. Charge arose from an accident September 27 at Moss and May in which $400 damage was done. Magistrate H. C. Hall also ordered that Tribe's license be suspended.

Jim and Joe were arguing about the result of last year's athletics, and in particular about the 100-yard sprint for which there had been only three runners. "I was standing right there at the finish," said Joe, "and Ken won the race with Steve a close second."

"You've got it all mixed up," replied Jim. "Ken was second and Mike first." In fact each boy made one mistake regarding the placing. Who won the race?

Wednesday's answer: Bill ran 210 yards.

Cement Plant Will End Malahat Dust

Relief Promised Within Six Months

Cement dust coating the mountainside around the Bamberton plant of the B.C. Cement Company on the Malahat will be almost eliminated within six months, it was announced today by N. A. Tomlin, general manager.

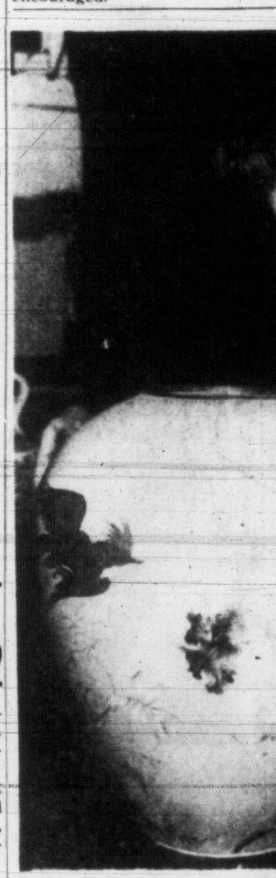

He said dust collectors will be installed on all kilns within that period and will improve the situation immeasurably.

The new installations follow years of complaint by Saanich Inlet sportsmen and tourist officials that the plant was reducing the scenic value of the area. It has been a matter of concern to the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce for some time.

The news was welcomed by G. H. Wheaton, president of the Victoria Chamber. He said the chamber would be pleased to hear of the effort at dust elimination.

"But the difficulties facing the company are more complex than are generally realized, and costly," he said. "People must realize that the dust nuisance is confined to a remote area lived in mostly by employees of the company."

"We are trying to attract industry, not chase it away. We must try to understand their problems before taking a swing at them. Industry should be encouraged."

$3,000 Beauty for Sale In Victoria-China Shop

A group of American tourists clustered round a beautiful vase in a city china shop today and one of them asked: "How much?"

"Three thousand dollars," replied the salesgirl in the tone of voice of one who sells articles of this value every day.

The tourist managed a rather strangled "thank you," muttered something about having to think it over and hurried from the shop.

Outwardly the vase, although admittedly most elegant, does not give the inexperienced eye any impression of its great value. It's a little more than two feet high and has a five gallon capacity. Maybe a crack or two would make it look older but it is completely unblemished.

Actually the vase was designed by the celebrated German artist Karl Moser 75 years ago and connoisseurs recognize it as one of the finest known examples of his work.

And to the skeptic who thinks the shop will have the vase on its hands for a long time, the proprietor replies: "You'd be surprised. Victoria is about the only place in Canada where you could sell a piece of this value."

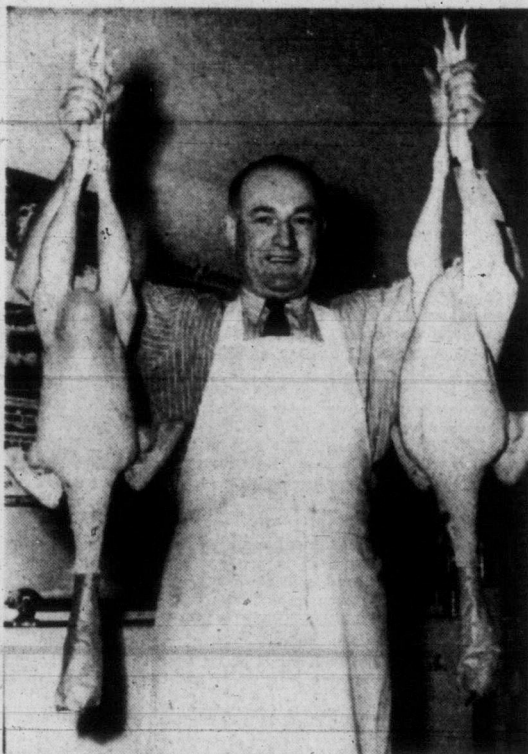

Later some of the same men were seen sacrificing their lives by standing to fire point blank within a dozen yards of the onrushing Germans who outnumbered them by thousands, as they made a last stand to cover the retreat of their comrades.

One suspected many of the wives present were drawn a little closer to "old sweats" whose war memories, whenever they meet in groups over the years, have bored them so much.

Their greying heads came closer to whisper as wives saw for the first time on the screen, overlaid weary men trudging through water-filled trenches; which were their homes for days on end, men of both sides dropping under machine gun and artillery fire to die in barren desolate acres of mud.

"Were you there? Were you in that part?" "They only look like boys" were the questions wives kept repeating to husbands.

Although most of the pictures were of action in France and Belgium, the great part the navy played in the conflict was highlighted, including some excellent

ONLY MR. TURK UNHAPPY

Full Program for Holiday Week-End

Everyone is set to enjoy the Thanksgiving week-end except the turkey.

A good many tasty vegetables will be used to decorate local churches for their annual expression of thanks for a bountiful harvest.

Others will share creaking tables with unlucky fat roasters now available at prices ranging from 55 to 79 cents per pound.

A few churches held special services last week, but the majority have arranged for their Thanksgiving observance Sunday.

One of the largest gatherings will be at Christ Church Cathedral, to be decorated with flowers, fruits and vegetables, where Dean P. R. Beattie will preach.

Music will include the hymns "For the Beauty of the Earth" at the morning service, and "O Christ Who Holds the Open Gate" in the evening.

SPORTS PROGRAM

A full three-day program has been arranged for sports fans to include soccer, hockey, Canadian football, fishing, and auto racing.

A total of 11 junior and juvenile league soccer games have been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, and senior league games will be played at Windsor, Bullen, lower Beacon Hill and Athletic Parks.

The annual Cowichan fishing derby, with $1,000 in prizes, will be held on the three days at Cowichan Bay in aid of Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Auto racers will compete for the B.C. championship at Shearling Speedway Monday at 2:45 p.m. and Victoria Cougars will play New Westminster on the Memorial Arena ice, starting at 3 p.m.

Weatherman William Mackie refused to commit himself to a forecast Sunday and Monday, but indicated Friday and Saturday are likely to be unsettled with rain.

Totem Theatre will open as usual Monday night with a modern presentation of the Sophocles drama "Antigone," held over for the second week. Moving picture theatres will observe their regular schedules.

Steamship schedules will be unchanged. Trans-Canada Air Lines and Vancouver Island Coach Lines will add extra equipment to existing schedules to handle overflow traffic.

Youbou Crash Victim Condition Improving

Condition of three-and-one-half-year-old Diane Patenaud, critical since she was hit by a car Monday at Youbou, was reported today to be "slightly improved."

The little girl apparently ran in front of a car driven by G. Braun of Youbou, and suffered internal injuries and fractures. She is undergoing treatment at King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan.

Gonzales Burglary Brings 5-Year Term

26-Year-Old Also Faces Other Courts

A 26-year-old Vancouver man was sentenced to five years in penitentiary by Magistrate H. C. Hall in Oak Bay police court today for breaking and entering a home on Gonzales Hill last month.

George Igor Krestnick had pleaded guilty to the charge earlier.

He was scheduled to appear in Saanich police court this afternoon for sentence, on a second burglary charge.

Also, he faces sentence in Vancouver Friday on three similar charges there.

LONG RECORD

Court was told accused has a long criminal record.

He was brought here at the beginning of the week from Vancouver, where he was arrested by mainland police, and pleaded guilty to breaking and entering.

The Saanich home of G. D. Ballantyne, Sea View Road, Ten Mile Point.

In the Dorman home burglary, a camera, jewelry and clothing valued at $1,000 were stolen. Most of the articles were recovered.

In the Ballantyne break-in, only a razor was taken.

MLA's MIFFED AS B.C. GAZETTE COPIES CUT OFF

Where will the provincial government's "efficiency with economy" program stop?

Members of the Legislature's printing committee were asking this question today as they objected to government action in cutting off their subscriptions to the B.C. Gazette, the government's official publication.

The Gazette has been supplied to government members free of charge ever since Colonial days.

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing asked why he received the Gazette while an M.P. but was cut off when he became an MLA.

The committee was told under present regulations MLAs would have to pay for the Gazette, unless the cabinet authorized free copies.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black promised to take the matter up with the cabinet.

Jeep Driver Acquitted of Manslaughter

A verdict of not guilty was returned today in the case of Douglas K. Vannatter, 23, of Dundas, Ontario, tried here in Assize Court on a motor manslaughter charge.

Vannatter, a former artilleryman stationed at Gordon Head, was charged with manslaughter following an accident on Gordon Head Road on April 15. The accused was the driver of a jeep which overturned and resulted in the death of A. M. Cowan, of Elkhor, Manitoba, a passenger.

The jury acquitted Vannatter after Crown prosecutor W. H. M. Haldane, Q.C., informed the court he was of the opinion there was not sufficient evidence against the accused to support a charge of manslaughter.

LESSER CHARGE

The prosecutor said, however, there was evidence enough to warrant a conviction on the lesser charge of dangerous driving.

YOUNG OAK BAY BROTHERS HOSPITALIZED WITH POLIO

Two Oak Bay brothers, aged one and two, brought the Greater Victoria polio total to 83 when they were admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday night.

The first cases since Monday, the brothers make this week's total three.

There have been 93 cases on Vancouver Island this year and five deaths.

'Some As Big As Yer 'ead'

J. T. Ball, 3241 Harriet Road, divided one Sequoia seed potato into four pieces last spring, planted them, and harvested 23 1/2 pounds of spuds from four hills. Largest, held by Mr. Ball, weighed four pounds, measured 21 1/2 inches in circumference. (Times photo.)

Mayors Support Tax On Federal Property

The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities is making "considerable headway" toward getting federal government holdings on municipal tax rolls, Mayor Claude Harrison told City Council this afternoon.

The mayor submitted a written report on the convention of the association which he attended last month in Montreal. Victoria was largely responsible at the 1952 convention in placing on association books a resolution urging provincial and federal governments to allow all Crown properties, including Crown corporations, to be subject to local assessment and taxation, the same as private enterprises.

The mayor said this year's convention reconfirmed that submission.

OTTAWA VISIT
The mayor said he "skipped" the social side of the convention, a trip to Mount Tremblant, in order that he could visit Ottawa.

"I felt it would be more advantageous to Victoria if I went to Ottawa and took up certain matters privately," he said. "This I did, and I am satisfied with the result."

The mayor pointed out the trip to Ottawa was at his own expense.

For Mr. Saunders, who lives at 1333 Fairfield Road, and Mr. Keane, 644-Cormorant, this is their second Coronation medal. They were both honored with similar medals when George VI was crowned.

Mr. Jamieson lives at 2417 Mowat Street.

It is understood some 30,000 medals are being distributed through the Secretary of State's office. Distribution started early in September. The job may take another month.

Names of recipients are not being announced by Ottawa.

FUN WITH FIGURES

Jim and Joe were arguing about the result of last year's athletics, and in particular about the 100-yard sprint for which there had been only three runners. "I was standing right there at the finish," said Joe, "and Ken won the race with Steve a close second."

"You've got it all mixed up," replied Jim. "Ken was second and Mike first." In fact each boy made one mistake regarding the placing. Who won the race?

Wednesday's answer: Bill ran 210 yards.

Film Takes Old Sweats Back to Mud of Flanders Fields

By TOM MERRIMAN

Ageing veterans of the First World War lived in the past for two and a half tense hours Wednesday at the showing of a graphic film "Lest We Forget."

The Canadian Legion Hall at Esquimalt was packed, mostly with old soldiers and their wives, and a sprinkling of veterans of the Second World War.

The film was watched in silence, interrupted only by the occasional chuckle as it recalled some of the few lighter memories of the war. Among them were the old French box car signs "forty men or eight horses"; soldiers drawing the eternal rations of "bully beef" and plum and apple jam, and hard tack; a shot of the Old Dumbells concert party.

There was a smile — yet memories of later events prompted a tear, as the Old Contemptibles appeared on their way to meet the enemy singing cheerfully in a Cockney twang, not a self-glorifying patriotic song, but the popular music hall ditty of the day, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Later some of the same men were seen sacrificing their lives by standing to fire point blank within a dozen yards of the onrushing Germans who outnumbered them by thousands, as they made a last stand to cover the retreat of their comrades.

One suspected many of the wives present were drawn a little closer to "old sweats" whose war memories, whenever they meet in groups over the years, have bored them so much.

Their greying heads came closer to whisper as wives saw for the first time on the screen, overlaid weary men trudging through water-filled trenches; which were their homes for days on end, men of both sides dropping under machine gun and artillery fire to die in barren desolate acres of mud.

"Were you there? Were you in that part?" "They only look like boys" were the questions wives kept repeating to husbands.

Although most of the pictures were of action in France and Belgium, the great part the navy played in the conflict was highlighted, including some excellent shots of the daring work of the "Q" boats against submarines.

The interest of the occasion was added to when the president, Bert Thomas, called to the platform Major-General George Peakes, much wounded veteran of the first conflict in which he served with such distinction as to win the coveted Victoria Cross, and Col. Larry Henderson who won honors in the Second World War.

Comparing the two wars they agreed that although, because of the masses of men thrown into action in First World War, the casualties were of necessity higher, the shell-torn terrain and the water-filled shell holes were common to both.

The spirit of the Canadian troops in both wars was such as to make their country proud.

Both noted with satisfaction how veterans of both wars now found themselves on common ground working harmoniously together through the Canadian Legion.

It was fitting that veterans of the Second World War, many of them sons of the veterans of the First World War, should become the leaders of an organization which, through many stormy years, the older men had built into a sound, loyal organization not only guarding the interest of veterans but constantly on watch for the interests of Canada as a nation.

The documentary film included footage seized from the Germans, and now released by the Canadian government to the legion.

You Can Make French Fries Just Like the Ones You Buy!

By PENNY SAVER

"Order of French fries, coming up!" I think I startled my dinner guests with that declaration, but their surprise was nothing compared to their expressions of amazement when I finally brought the golden brown chips into the dining room.

"Ooh, they're just like chips you buy in a restaurant!"

"How ever did you cut them so perfectly?"

My guests, simply wild over my latest culinary effort, showered me with questions and praise!

I let them think that I'd spent hours in the kitchen, slicing potatoes... throwing each chip that wasn't a perfect rectangle into the garbage can... and they believed me!

But I'll tell you my secret. It took me less time to cut those chips than it takes to slit a spud into four chunks for the boiling pot! Mmmmm Hmmm... here's how.

For 69 cents, I bought a gadget that looks like a miniature tray; it has two handles which you grip when placing "tray" over potato. Now instead of having a solid bottom, this little deal has sharp wires strung to criss-cross in squares, which are exactly the side of the popular French fried chip.

All you do is push down on the potato, slicing it into your perfect chips. It's as simple as that!

When I looked into the display window of a Victoria Jeweler's store this morning, I thought I was looking at a pair of real jade earrings... until I spotted an identical pair in sky blue! Realizing that they were fakes, I had the courage to ask the price. They were just $1 a pair! Consequently I left wearing a pair of "jade" earrings. (They're screws-ons, incidentally!)

You know how kiddies gum up paper straws when they suck too energetically at their favorite drink? That problem is solved by using plastic straws, of course! And when you buy pretty striped ones for them (at 10 cents a packet) they can pretend it's a party!

Seek Psychiatric Aid For Severe Phobia

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Intense fear can and often does lead to physical upsets. That is why the woman who wrote the following letter should consult her doctor about her problem. She says:

(Q)—"I am 27. Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. I am still extremely nervous and I have a phobia. This phobia is thunderstorms. I have tried awfully hard to overcome it but I can't seem to do so. The fear that overcomes me when a storm strikes is terrific and it upsets me so that it leaves me sick for several days. I was never afraid of thunderstorms before I had the breakdown. Is there any way you can help me?"

(A)—The only help I can give you is to urge you to see the doctor who took care of you at the time of your breakdown. Explain to him how thunderstorms affect you not only at the time of the storm but also what after-effects they have.

For one in good physical condition, an extreme fear that leaves one weak and tired is bad enough. But when one is nervous and high-strung, still recovering from the effects of a nervous breakdown, such experiences will seriously retard recovery.

If you could live in an area where there are no thunderstorms your problem would not be so serious. But there are storms almost everywhere people live and they are not limited to any one season.

If your doctor recommends psychiatric treatment to find out why you have intense fear of storms, follow his advice and get this treatment. Since this fear is of recent origin, it should not be so difficult to correct as if it dated back to some childhood experience.

Ordinarily our shipments come the old conventional way which is by boat or train, and of course it costs money to bring anything as heavy as rugs all the way from India. It occurred to me that Elephant transportation would probably be cheaper than anything else, so we decided to try it. At long last here we are with the greatest selection of Indian Rugs that ever came to town and at prices lower than you can find anywhere. We have them in plain colors of Beige, Rose, Green, Oyster, Blue, etc., each with a sensational spray corner. Hand-e-wrapsodies

A perfect cook is Mrs. D.,
Her roasts are great--on Sunday.
But left unwrapped they lose their zest
And turn out flat--on Monday!

But Mrs. J., a wiser lass,
In Hand-e-wrap preserves 'em;
Her roasts stay fresh and flavorful
No matter when she serves 'em!

Hand-e-wrap

HEAVY WAXED PAPER

It's smart kitchen economy to wrap your meat, fish and vegetables in heavy, double-waxed Hand-e-wrap. No other product so completely preserves food flavor and prevents waste.

SAVE WITH Hand-e-wrap REFILLS. Pop a new refill roll into your empty Hand-e-wrap container. Saves the cost of a new container every time!

Comes in 100 and 200 foot rolls.

Discuss Plans for Demonstration

A fudge-making demonstration is being sponsored by St. Margaret's Old Girls' Association, to take place Tuesday in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company. Miss Emily Elworthy of Peggy Page Candy Store is to give the demonstration, which will commence at 2 p.m. and again at 3.30. Three members of the committee making plans for the event are seen here as they discuss details. They are, left to right: Mrs. Arthur Laundry, Mrs. H. A. Richmond and Mrs. F. R. Nixon.

To "cobble up" means put together in a hurry and that's exactly how this spicy peach cobbler is done. Empty a No. 2½ can peach slices into a baking dish. Stir in ¼ cup brown sugar, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Prepare one cup biscuit mix into soft dough according to package directions. Drop spoonfuls of dough in a sugar and cinnamon mixture and place over fruit. Bake in hot oven about half hour.

The darker tones are the smartest tones in fall hosiery. These slenderize the leg and trim down the ankle.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Watch Out, Wives, Tubby Hubby Is Losing Pounds

A lot of women are going to have to leave their knitting and attend to their loving because many men all over the country have gotten better looking these past few days, during which time I have been running my Tubby Hubby reducing diet. I have before me a letter which says "I have lost 15 pounds on your Tubby Hubby diet."

It is always a question of whether or not it is better to fatten him up so you won't have to worry about him, or slim him down to be wonderful looking for you! Actually, wives with husbands who are overweight are seriously worried about them because the little women realize that obesity is a serious health hazard, and many a woman would like less success and more companionship, anyway. What good is it all, if in your more mature years, you have to travel alone, or redecorate the house and sit in it, with no pipes, or tweeds or golf clubs or masculine confusion around?

I have not talked about exercise during this diet series. I would like to say a few words about the place it deserves in a reducing routine. Exercise is an aid because the more active we are physically, the more calories we burn up. However, you cannot replace calorie cutting with exercise. You would have to walk miles and miles to lose one pound.

For the normally healthy person, exercise should be a "must." It stirs up circulation and tones the body. The only thing to watch when reducing and exercising is the fact that exercise may increase your appetite. Be sure that it does not cause you to eat more than your allowed amount.

A warning should be given here. The middle-aged man who suddenly begins exercising, after years of sedentary life, is taking a great risk. He should have a physical examination before beginning exercise. This is especially true of the overweight individual.

Here is your menu for Friday:

FRIDAY
Breakfast, one-half grapefruit, helping of whole-wheat cereal with skimmed milk and light on the sugar, two pieces of toast lightly buttered, coffee. Lunch, fresh fruit salad, four tablespoons of cottage cheese (no salad dressing), one Swiss cheese sandwich (two pieces of bread, no mayonnaise). Dinner, generous helping of baked fish, one cup of cabbage, lightly cooked, one-half cup of spinach or greens, one orange, one roll, milk before retiring.

If you missed some of the menus, or would like to have the Tubby Hubby Reducing Diet in a pocket sized booklet, send ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

... SAID MR. TODD IN 1882

Sir John A. MacDonald was premier, and Canada still lacked a transcontinental railway when Mr. J. H. Todd, sitting in an office on Wharf Street, Victoria, selected the first salmon brand registered in the Dominion—a "horseshoe" surmounting a salmon. Henceforward this mark was to distinguish the very finest red sockeye salmon packed on Canada's Pacific coast. Even to this day it has never varied.

It is a far cry from the small, wharf-side office of 1882 to the modern food store of 1953. But just as her mother did before her, the woman of today knows with certainty that every can of Todd's salmon will be nourishing, firm-fleshed and delicious. Only the finest fresh-caught fish are selected for the Todd label. You may not always be able to get the Todd brand. But when you do, it will be "salmon at its finest."

SUPERB QUALITY Irene Byatt Pleases In Farewell Recital

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON
A voice like Irene Byatt's is a truly rare phenomenon. When she sings a full warm tide of sound flows about the listener, bringing a dimension and richness to vocal music that none but a great contralto can achieve.
The possessor of such a voice is duty bound—providing opportunity is offered—to cultivate and purify its production, to back it with all possible understanding of the vocal art, and the art of music.
Since her return to Victoria this summer, we have been privileged to hear Miss Byatt in isolated song groups on one or two occasions, not counting her summer school concert.
But Wednesday night, when Victoria Musical Art Society sponsored the young singer in a farewell recital before an audience of nearly 600 at Victoria High School auditorium, a well-proportioned program gave music-lovers a chance to evaluate what Miss Byatt and her teachers have done with her endowment.
Much has already been said about the superb quality, power and range of her voice. The training she has received in recent years has freed the vocal mechanism and placed it securely and uniformly with the exception of two or three notes at the top of its compass.
In the two ways in which a musician must grow—technically and artistically—Miss Byatt has undoubtedly developed. I think, to a greater extent in the former category, but that is understandable.
PROGRESS SHOWN
There are many long stages before the complete artist emerges from the cocoon. The Victoria contralto is several stages along on the difficult journey as she proved in the singing of "Care Selve" (Handel), some of her French group, the Teahakowsky aria, "Adieu Forets" and the Negro spirituals.
She revealed, for instance, a most pleasing smoothness of vocal line, well shaped phrases, good breath control and diction, a fair degree of flexibility. Her manner on the concert platform is relaxed, easy, friendly. Above all, it is repose.
Interpretively, Miss Byatt still has a good deal to achieve. This was most noticeable in the leader group which demands so much of the greatest artist. That she herself is aware of this is evidenced in her expressed determination to study with Lotte Lehmann in California next year.
But what the singer can still achieve is almost entirely up to her own powers of imagination, her musical intelligence and the grit and determination she has already shown she possesses to an unusual degree.
She was enthusiastically applauded throughout the evening and responded with several encores. Her accompanist was James Saunders, Victoria Musical Art Society, having played a big and loyal part in support of Miss Byatt, had every reason to be proud and to feel well rewarded last night.

Stricter Fireworks Controls, Suggested
Stricter control over the sale and use of fireworks was recommended in the Legislature Wednesday by Bert Price, (S.C., Vancouver Burrard).
"I am of the opinion fireworks and skyrockets are a menace to life and limb and property out of all relation to their pleasure-giving qualities," he said.

TLC OPPOSES TOURIST PLAN FOR MORE SCHOOL HOLIDAYS

A proposal of the Canadian Tourist Association to lengthen school vacations by two weeks and change the date of Labor Day is winning little support from organized labor. At a meeting of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council Wednesday night, the council passed a motion by A. P. Rayment, secretary-treasurer, that the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada be asked to "watch and resist" any such action.

"I think we will have the support of PTA groups in our stand," Mr. Rayment said.

100-Passenger World-Girdling Jets in Sight

TORONTO (BUP)—British man of the British Overseas Airways Corp. said today.

Sir Miles Thomas told an Empire Club luncheon the new planes, successors to today's 480-mile an hour de Havilland Comet jets, would carry 100 persons non-stop between London and New York in seven hours or reach Australia with a full payload in a day.

"This is no pipe dream, but a target in clear focus," he said. "Passenger flights around the world in 48 hours are not just a vision but a project that we in BOAC are planning at this moment."

LIBERAL PARTY CHAMPIONS. ALL THE PEOPLE—CAMPNEY

TORONTO (BUP)—The Liberal Party has won eight of the last nine elections because it has stood through the years as the champion of all the people, Associate Defense Minister Ralph Campney said Wednesday night.

Campney told a Toronto University Liberal Association that the Tory Party had always been the party of the few. "The CCF Party in Canada is a straight class party as are socialist parties everywhere, no matter by what name they call themselves. The Social Credit Party evidently believes that platforms are made to get in on and need not be in any way relevant to after performance. They too are a class party with a faint, but not too faint either, aroma of Fascism clinging to them."

"Only the Liberal Party in Canada has stood all down through the years as the champion of all the people, the ordinary people," he said.

Canadian Now No. 2 In NATO Air Forces

FONTAINEBLEAU, France (CP)—Raised to the rank of air marshal, one of two in the Royal Canadian Air Force, John L. Plant today was confirmed as acting-chief of staff of Allied air forces, central Europe, NATO's largest air component.

Until the announcement was made, Plant was chief of staff on a temporary basis. He is No. 2 man to British Air Chief Marshal Sir Basil Embry, Allied air commander, succeeding Gen. Pierre J. Fay of France, who left the post to command the French air force.

Advertising is unknown in the radio broadcasting service made, Plant was chief of staff of Denmark, run by the state.

Lawyer's Strike Resolution Attacked by Percy Bengough

The legal profession was sharply criticized Wednesday night by Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Speaking at a regular meeting of Victoria and District Council in Labor Hall, Broughton Street, he said: "The lawyers want to take the right to strike away from any group where a strike would be against the best interests of the people. The only organization that could strike without affecting the well-being of the people would be the lawyers' union."

"They don't have to negotiate like we do," he added. "All they do is send a bill, and if you complain you go before another member of the union that has had a promotion. There is no arbitration."

Mr. Bengough was referring to a resolution dealing with strikes passed by the Canadian Bar Association.

He said the TLC does not like strikes, but that to take away a man's right to cease work would be the forerunner of slave labor.

He claimed the TLC has always followed a policy of "no politics" in dealing with governments, believing it gains by meeting all governments on an equal footing rather than being committed to one.

Mr. Bengough wants to see the Unemployment Insurance Act extended to cover persons who lose employment because of sickness, and claimed it could be done without amending the act or infringing on provincial rights. Funds also are available, he said.

He dismissed any early union with the Canadian Congress of Labor.

"We get together on many things, and we are not fighting," he said. "We are not getting farther apart, but we are not yet in the same bed."

A guest at the meeting was Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, and his deputy, William Sandis. At a short business session John Aubrey reported considerable improvement of cleanliness and control of drunkenness in local beer parlors in the last nine weeks. They were still overcrowded, he said, and in busy periods glasses often contained less than the prescribed six ounces.

FUSILIERS AIR-BORNE TO GUIANA

Angry Jagan Assails 'Show of Force'

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—British rushed reinforcements by air to this leftist-threatened colony today as seaborne troops were believed disembarking here under tight military security.

The small group of Europeans in British Guiana welcomed the arrival of three troop-carrying British warships, but leftist Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan assailed the "show of force."

The airborne troops—120 men of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers—left the West Indies Island of Jamaica at midnight, for Georgetown aboard five chartered airliners. Other members of the Jamaica garrison had sailed earlier on the three warships which arrived off this capital city Wednesday.

As the warships—the 8,000-ton cruiser Superb and the 1,600-ton frigates Bigbury Bay and Burghhead Bay—raced up to the port, Jagan accused the governor of the colony, Sir Alfred Savage, of calling for the troops without consulting his elected ministers.

"The responsibility for what ever may happen is entirely that of the governor and those who have advised him," the fiery leader of the People's Progressive party told the colony's House of Assembly Wednesday.

The PPP, which holds 18 of the assembly's 24 seats, is demanding self-government and a trimming of the governor's powers. British authorities have accused party leaders of "Communist intrigues" and have warned that attempts might be made to set up a Communist state.

'FROM MALENKOV DOWN'

Eden Says U.K. Ready For Red Talks

By W. G. LANDREY

MARGATE, Eng. (UP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that Britain is willing to discuss peace with Russia "at any level" from Premier Georgi Malenkov on down, and to guarantee that the proposed European Army will never "threaten Soviet security."

The gaunt foreign secretary got a tremendous ovation when he strode to the speakers' stand at the Conservative party's annual convention here to begin his first major speech since illness forced him into temporary retirement earlier this year.

Eden told his fellow-Conservatives that: "We should pursue all the methods open to us to reduce international tension from a four-power meeting at the highest level to negotiation of even small issues. But we should not abuse our allies if they do not share our views."

CO-OPERATION KEY

The conference later unanimously approved a resolution which said:

"This conference, whilst welcoming any sincere and firm approach from the East, believes that the preservation of freedom depends upon closer co-operation between the British Commonwealth, Europe and America, and calls upon Her Majesty's government in its unique position to continue to do everything in its power to implement this policy."

The speech was Eden's first in six months. The foreign secretary, considered the eventual successor to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, underwent three successive gall bladder operations early this year. He resumed his duties this week.

Eden told the delegates that "despite a discouraging response from the Soviet Union, we shall persevere in our efforts to get the talks going on the main issues which divide East from West." He identified these main issues as Germany and Austria in Europe and the Korean problem in the Far East.

DOOR ALWAYS OPEN

"We are firm against aggression but the door is always open to discussions and agreement at any level," Eden said. The foreign secretary referred to Churchill's proposal for a meeting of the heads of state of the Big Four. He added:

NO EAGERNESS

Eden said the Soviet reply to the latest big three invitation for a conference on Germany and Austria "shows no eagerness for a meeting at any level." The Kremlin's answer was an involved and complicated document, he said, "to which I trust

Prison-Time Pay Recommended For All Captured in Europe

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, chief claims commissioner, today recommended a varied scale of compensation with a maximum of $1 a day for each day military personnel and merchant seamen were held captive in Europe during the Second World War.

His recommendations were announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent. A high government official said the government will implement the report.

The commissioner, however, turned down a demand by the National Council of Canadian Prisoners of War for a flat $1 a day for European prisoners. The $1-a-day award was previously granted to 1,417 former prisoners in the Far Eastern theatre and to men held prisoner by "criminal" organizations.

Chief Justice Campbell of Prince Edward Island made his recommendation in a 33-page report to the government.

He found that all former prisoners of war in Europe had been maltreated. He recommended that compensation be paid to all except in cases where the presumption of maltreatment is rebutted.

More than 8,000 Canadians were held prisoner in Europe, including 1,944 captured during the famed Dieppe raid.

All former prisoners, unless the presumption of maltreatment is disproven, will receive 20 cents for each day in prison.

In addition, men will receive awards for aggravating incidents such as shackling and hunger marches and for unusually serious maltreatment.

The compensation, however, must not exceed $1 for each day of imprisonment.

An official of the war claims commission said many Dieppe prisoners suffered a variety of forced marches, shackling and other types of maltreatment which could give them an award of $1 a day. Under these circumstances such prisoners would receive more than $1,000.

The official also said that many former prisoners who qualified previously for the $1-a-day award will receive additional compensation.

These prisoners received the $1 a day only for the length of time they were held by a "criminal" organization. They now will qualify for the general award of 20 cents a day and for other benefits for additional maltreatment while in regular prison camps.

The chief justice was instructed earlier this year to investigate recommendations by the national POW council for the automatic $1 award for all Canadian prisoners in the Second World War.

Tragic Gamble

"We relief on a criminal's word. We had to. But we lost." That summed up today the reaction of Robert C. Greenleaf, 71, above, to a 10-day life-and-death gamble with his six-year-old son Bobby as the stake—a gamble that ended in the tragic death of the child.

Many Slides At Whatshan Before Mishap

Power Men Saw Earlier Shifts

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Power Commission was caught completely unaware by the disastrous mud and rock slides which buried Whatshan power plant on Lower Arrow Lake last August, commission chairman S. R. Weston said Wednesday.

Testifying at the government inquiry into the slides at the $3,800,000 hydro-electric development, Mr. Weston said he had been aware of shifts above the plant, but added:

"We were never at any time led to believe there was any danger to the switch yard or the power house."

"I have never heard anyone who was at Whatshan before the August slides express an opinion that there was any danger from earlier slides."

"No one has ever stated to me—layman or anyone else—that there was any danger of the land sliding down onto the power house."

"Looking back now," he added, "of course it's different."

Mr. Weston said it was always easy after a disaster "to look back and think of something that could have been done."

He told special commissioner Mr. Justice J. V. Cline that the commission now is taking two major steps to prevent new mud slides.

They are working to reduce the leakage of water from the tunnel, which could have weakened the earth and caused it to off the land above the power plant so that recurrence of such slides will be "almost inconceivable."

He also said he still had full confidence in A. W. Lash, chief engineer for the commission.

U.S.-Wide Dragnet For Killer of Boy

KIDNAP SIDELIGHTS

Man Who 'Broke' the Case Tells of Hall's Arrest

EDITOR'S NOTE—Lieut. Louis Shoulders broke the Bobby Greenleaf kidnapping case by acting on a lucky tip from an informant. Here is his story:

By LIEUT. LOUIS SHOULDERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—I was sitting in my office about 3:30 p.m. yesterday when I got a call on my private line from a certain fellow who said "meet me at 7:30 or quarter to eight at Union and Pershing and I'll give you something plenty hot. It's a guy with a pistol and a lot of money."

I said to this fellow, whom I knew, "Where are you?" He said "never mind, just be there." At 7:30 I went by the Newstead police station and picked up Patrolman Elmer Dolan. We went to Union and Pershing where we met the cab driver.

He told me that he was supposed to bring this guy a girl at 8 p.m. He said he was supposed to rap on apartment 303 of the Town House and say "Steve, this is John."

This fellow told us we could use that pass-word but he said after you get in you had better nail him fast because he's wild and liable to do some shooting.

So we went up and tried it.

Dolan said "This is John" as we knocked on the door. The door opened immediately and we grabbed Hall and searched him, but he didn't give us any trouble.

I found $700 in his wallet and two suitcases full of money, which we later discovered amounted to almost $300,000. Dolan and I looked at the money and right away we knew it must be part of that Kansas City kidnapping. So we asked him and he said, "Yea, I'm the guy."

Later on, he led us to Mrs. Heady and they told us the whole story. He also told us he had hidden the gun in the drawer of a telephone stand and Dolan went back and got that.

That's about all there was to it. It was just routine.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Justice department officials praised St. Louis, Mo., police today for their "very good police work" in catching two of Bobby Greenleaf's kidnappers.

They said the St. Louis authorities deserve full credit for carrying out a "good investigation" and showing "all-around alertness" in the climactic finish of the case.

Although the FBI was in on the investigation, the final break didn't come until St. Louis Police Lt. Joseph Shoulders, acting on a cab driver's tip, found one of the kidnappers in a hotel with nearly half of the $600,000 in ransom money.

The FBI steadfastly refused to reveal any of the details of its role in the inquiry. It also declined to comment on the statement of Arthur B. Eisenhower that the bureau had entered the case "almost immediately."

Eisenhower, brother of the President and the banker who assembled the ransom money, said FBI agents were present while the cash was being counted.

TURNER STATION, Mo. (UP)—Neighbors and relatives of Tom John Marsh said today the fugitive suspect in the Bobby Greenleaf kidnapping-murder is a "wino" who "doesn't give a damn about anything."

He was known in this little farm town as "Tom" or "Tommy" and filled the role of village bum.

"He's never done much for a living," said one neighbor. "He just loafed all the time."

Marsh, who has been accused of killing the six-year-old kidnap victim, has dozens of relatives here and at the nearby larger city of Springfield, Mo. The area swarmed today with FBI men and Missouri authorities on the lookout for the fugitive.

One relative who would not be identified said she would just as soon forget he was part of the family. "I don't want to claim any kin to him," she said.

WOMAN KILLED

16 Firemen Injured In Vancouver Blaze

VANCOUVER (BUP)—One woman was dead and 16 firemen injured today following a grocery store fire that started Wednesday afternoon and still was burning this morning.

Police said Mrs. Lila Chapman, 58, of Vancouver, was killed as an indirect result of the fire when she was knocked down by a fire chief's car speeding to the three-alarm blaze at a Safeway store.

Nine of the firemen were hospitalized after they were overcome by fumes from a combination of smoke, ammonia gases, carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide.

The fire in the rambling, modern store that covered almost a third of a city block started at 1:30 p.m. yesterday when two refrigerators mechanics working on the store's freezing unit accidentally broke an oil line feeding the unit's motor.

A torch they were using ignited the oil. The men said oil seeped under a wall and up into the insulation.

Firemen thought they had the outbreak under control an hour after it started. It burned out of control, however, and two more alarms were turned in.

All available equipment and firemen were called to the scene. Damage was estimated unofficially at more than $300,000.

An early-closing by-law effective here on Wednesdays probably saved a catastrophe, firemen said. The store which usually was jammed with women shopping for groceries was empty except for the repairmen when the fire broke out.

Hospitals Deny Martin's Claims On Bed Situation

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hospital authorities in Vancouver have denied claims of Health Minister Eric Martin that the bed shortage is nearly beaten.

Speaking in the Legislature, the minister said the government considered the number of beds for acute and chronic cases as nearly adequate.

However, hospital authorities here said the statement could not apply to Vancouver.

A spokesman for Vancouver General said there were 12 persons seeking beds for every bed available for acute cases.

Police Look for Tattooed 'Wino' in Kidnapping Case

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—A nation-wide dragnet was spread today for a tattooed man accused as the kidnapper of six-year-old Bobby Greenleaf, but police believed they might already have the murderer in the nation's most shocking abduction in a generation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation launched a cross-country search for Thomas John Marsh, 37, a stocky, blue-eyed man with his name tattooed on his right forearm and a dagger and snake on his left.

Marsh, a "wino" who has served time for molesting children, was accused by the man who engineered the kidnapping—after two years of planning the crime—as the triggerman who put a bullet through the little boy's head.

But a high-ranking police official in St. Louis said it was "an even bet" that Marsh's accuser, Carl Austin Hall, 37, a spendthrift son of a Kansas attorney, did the shooting himself.

Hall, Heady Held in Jail

Hall and his plump girl friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, were being held in a St. Louis jail in lieu of $100,000 bail after being arraigned on a federal charge of extorting $600,000—by far the largest kidnap ransom in history—from the child's 71-year-old millionaire father, Robert Greenleaf.

They faced first-degree murder charges in St. Joseph, Mo., where Bobby's brutally beaten body was found Wednesday in a lime-lined grave behind a honeysuckle hedge at Mrs. Heady's home. They were to be moved to Kansas City, scene of the extortion, as soon as papers could be made out. The St. Joseph arraignment was set tentatively for Monday.

A convicted murderer in Missouri faces a maximum penalty of death in the gas chamber. The charges against the two in St. Joseph included kidnapping. Missouri has a law which carries the death penalty for kidnapping for ransom.

Also being held as a material witness, at the request of the FBI, in a private cell here was Sandra O'Day, 22, a 168-pound blonde prostitute. The FBI imposed secrecy; only federal officials could see her.

Hall had spent Tuesday night with her in St. Louis on a drunken spending spree. Police who arrested him found Tuesday night found $193,992 in his hotel suite. He said the O'Day woman took the rest while he slept.

Later he said he gave her $1,000 and told her to leave for California and "mail a letter to a man in St. Joseph."

A third version was that he gave her $2,000 or $3,000 but that it might have been more because he was too drunk to know.

The O'Day woman left St. Louis hurriedly Tuesday morning. She was arrested here, and the FBI drew a veil of secrecy about her.

Discrepancies in Hall Story

As the St. Louis police turned Hall and Mrs. Heady over to federal authorities there, they pointed to discrepancies in Hall's story. A high police official there said it could be assured Hall had been in fear the boy would be found in his hands and added, "we think it's an even bet that he and the woman carried out the kidnapping and murder themselves."

The same official said it was the "consensus of the department" that Hall and Mrs. Heady had the remainder of the money hidden somewhere.

The huge kidnap sum had been hastily gathered together from federal reserve banks by Arthur D. Eisenhower, Kansas City banker and brother of President Eisenhower, within two days after Bobby was spirited from an exclusive day school Sept. 28.

At the behest of the frantic father, Eisenhower, vice-president of the Commerce Trust Co., one of the city's largest banks, procured 40,000 pieces of money—$200,000 in 10-dollar bills and $400,000 in 20's.

As the kidnapper had requested, they were placed in two canvas bags, the 10's in one and the 20's in another. As directed, the whole sum then was put into an army duffel bag, making a currency package weighing 85 pounds.

Dumped Money Off Bridge

Two business associates of Greenleaf, who had maintained contact with Hall by telephone and letter while the police stayed out of the case in hopes of getting Bobby back safely, staged a "clock-and-dagger" delivery of the ransom.

They dumped the money off at a bridge on a country road about a mile off U.S. Highway 40 near Kansas City. The bag dropped 40 feet into a perfect hiding place in a heavily wooded section. The nearest farm house is an eighth of a mile from the bridge. Hall picked up the ransom in the dark hours of Monday morning.

Today, the distraught parents faced the tragic task of identifying the clothes of their son. The garments were brought here from St. Joseph—the small shoes, shorts, socks, shirt and trousers.

Funeral services for Bobby will be held at St. Agnes Catholic Church here Friday morning. Wednesday, as the news broke of the tragic end of the most horrible kidnapping and murder since that of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., 21 years ago, Bobby's little schoolmates were in the chapel praying for him.

The day—the feast of the Most Holy Rosary in the Catholic Church—had been designated as a day of special prayer for Bobby in the French Institute of Notre Dame de Sion.

Dr. Hubert Eversull, the dentist who took care of Bobby's teeth at St. Joseph to help make positive identification of the body, was reported to have suffered a heart attack Wednesday night. He said today he was "feeling fine" and denied the report. He was in his Kansas City office on schedule today.

Boy's Teeth Knocked Out

It was when the examination of the body was made that it was disclosed that Bobby, slain the same day—a week ago Monday—that Mrs. Heady had lured him from the school by a ruse, had been beaten.

His abductors struck him in the mouth before they shot him through the back of the head and buried him in the shallow grave, over which they planted flowers. A coroner said two of the child's lower teeth were knocked out, a third loosened, and both lips cut.

Hall's story was that all of this was none of his doing—that he planned the kidnapping, duped Mrs. Heady into posing as the boy's aunt by telling her the child actually was his, and turned him over to Marsh for the trip to St. Joseph. When he arrived there, Hall said, he found the child dead.

He said he buried the boy and brought the murder weapon, a snub-nosed revolver which was found in his hotel room, to St. Louis with him on the motor trip to pick up the ransom. Mrs. Heady, once charged with helping in the Oklahoma jail break of the notorious O'Malley gang in the

TATTOOED KIDNAPPER BEING HUNTED DOWN

MEMBERS DESCRIBED

Mum in House, Tom Irwin Writes Pungent Column

Speaker Thomas Irwin of the B.C. Legislature has given some of his opinions of the current session in a signed article in the Marpole-Richmond Review.

Mr. Speaker pulls no punches, and describes the current Throne Speech debate as "dreary."

He also goes on to pass some opinions on some members of the House.

Here are some excerpts: "Last week Tom Uphill, Labor, Fernie, indulged in some stories for the benefit of the House that were hardly in keeping with the dignity and prestige of a member of the Legislature."

"Mrs. Arsene, SC, Victoria, did not materially add to the prestige of women in the Legislature."

"E. E. Winch, CCF, Burnaby, was his usual self, occupying close to two hours of the time of the House quoting from various sources at length, much to the disgust of the public and the members who, when all is said and done, prefer factual knowledge rather than quoted opinions."

"The Honorable Eric Martin, SC, Vancouver-Burrard, was very bright and extremely racy, indulging in quips back and forth across the House much to the amusement and entertainment of all present."

The article was signed "Tom Irwin, MLA for Delta."

U.S.-Wide Dragnet Out For 'Wino' Triggerman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—A nation-wide dragnet was spread today for a tattooed man accused as the kidnapper of six-year-old Bobby Greenleaf, but police believed they might already have the murderer in the nation's most shocking abduction in a generation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation launched a "cross-country search for Thomas John Marsh, 37, a stocky, blue-eyed man with his name tattooed on his right forearm and a dagger and snake on his left. Marsh, a "Wino" who has served time for molesting children, was accused by the man who engineered the kidnapping after two years of planning the crime—as the triggerman who put a bullet through the little boy's head.

But a high-ranking police official in St. Louis said it was "an even bet" that Marsh's accuser, Carl Austin Hall, 37, spendthrift son of a Kansas attorney, did the shooting himself.

Hall, Heady Held in Jail

Hall and his plump girl friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, were being held in a St. Louis jail in lieu of $100,000 bail after being arraigned on a federal charge of extorting $600,000—by far the largest ransom in history—from the child's 71-year-old millionaire father, Robert Greenleaf.

They faced first-degree murder charges in St. Joseph, Mo., where Bobby's brutally beaten body was found Wednesday in a lime-lined grave behind a honeysuckle hedge at Mrs. Heady's home. They were to be moved to Kansas City, scene of the extortion, as soon as papers could be made out. The St. Joseph arraignment was set tentatively for Monday. A convicted murderer in Missouri faces a maximum penalty of death in the gas chamber. The charges against the two in St. Joseph included kidnapping. Missouri has a law which carries the death penalty for kidnapping for ransom.

Hall had spent Tuesday night with her in St. Louis on a drunken spending spree. Police who arrested him there Tuesday night found $193,992 in his hotel suite. He said the O'Day woman took the rest while he slept.

Later he said he gave her $1,000 and told her to leave for California and "mail a letter to a man in St. Joseph." A third version was that he gave her $2,000 or $3,000 but that it might have been more because he was too drunk to know.

The O'Day woman left St. Louis hurriedly Tuesday morning. She was arrested here, and the FBI drew a veil of secrecy about her.

Discrepancies in Hall Story

As the St. Louis police turned Hall and Mrs. Heady over to federal authorities there, they pointed to discrepancies in Hall's story. A high police official there said it could be assured Hall had been in fear the boy would be found in his hands and added, "we think it's an even bet that he and the woman carried out the kidnapping and murder themselves."

The same official said it was the "consensus of the department" that Hall and Mrs. Heady had the remainder of the money hidden somewhere.

The huge kidnap sum had been hastily gathered together from federal reserve banks by Arthur D. Eisenhower, Kansas City banker and brother of President Eisenhower, within two days after Bobby was spirited from an exclusive day school Sept. 28.

At the behest of the frantic father, Eisenhower, vice-president of the Commerce Trust Co., one of the city's largest banks, procured 40,000 pieces of money—$200,000 in 10-dollar bills and $400,000 in 20's.

As the kidnapper had requested, they were placed in two canvas bags, the 10's in one and the 20's in another. As directed, the whole sum then was put into an army duffel bag, making a currency package weighing 85 pounds.

Dumped Money Off Bridge

Two business associates of Greenleaf, who had maintained contact with Hall by telephone, and letter while the police stayed out of the case in hopes of getting Bobby back safely, staged a cloak-and-dagger delivery of the ransom.

They dumped the money off at a bridge on a country route about a mile off U.S. Highway 40 near Kansas City. The bag dropped 40 feet into a perfect hiding place in a heavily wooded section. The nearest farm house is an eighth of a mile from the bridge. Hall picked up the ransom in the dark hours of Monday morning.

Today, the distraught parents faced the tragic task of identifying the clothes of their son. The garments were to be brought here from St. Joseph—the small shoes, shorts, socks, shirt and trousers.

Funeral services for Bobby will be held at St. Agnes Catholic Church here Friday morning, Wednesday, as the news broke of the tragic end of the most horrible kidnapping and murder since that of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., 21 years ago, Bobby's little school-

British, U.S. Trieste Plan Sparks Riots

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Rock-hurling mobs of Yugoslavs tonight smashed windows at the United States, British and Italian embassies in angry protest against the decision to turn over the city of Trieste to Italian administration.

Yugoslav officials meanwhile denounced the Anglo-American plans and hinted that it may move up troops to protect its interests at the Adriatic seaport.

Demonstrations broke out in the streets of Belgrade less than half an hour after the plan was announced.

Yugoslavia will send a formal protest note to the Western powers tonight or tomorrow against the decision, the official news agency Tanjug reported.

ACT READY

Alternative Ballot On Way Out

B.C. alternative voting system, used for the first time in the 1952 election, will be abolished at the current sitting of the Legislature.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black this afternoon introduced a bill outlining a new elections act providing for the change-over, which had been predicted for months.

All future elections will be conducted under the old single choice "X" system.

The legislation is assured passage through the House because the 14-man CCF group will support the measure.

The new legislation, as predicted, also lowers the minimum voting age from 21 to 19 and gives Doukhobors the franchise.

It cuts from 63 days to 38 days the waiting period between the day an election writ is issued and election day.

A by-election can be called in 31 days under the new law.

KIDNAP SIDELIGHTS

Tells of Hall's Arrest

EDITOR'S NOTE—Lieut. Louis Shoulders broke the Bobby Greenleaf kidnapping case by setting on a lucky tip from an informant. Here is his story.

By LIEUT. LOUIS SHOULDERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—I was sitting in my office about 3:30 p.m. yesterday when I got a call on my private line from a certain fellow who said "meet me at 7:30 or quarter to eight at Union and Pershing and I'll give you something plenty hot. It's a guy with a pistol and a lot of money."

I said to this fellow, whom I knew, "Where are you?" He said "never mind, just be there." At 7:30 I went by the Newstead police station and picked up Patrolman Elmer Dolan. We went to Union and Pershing where we met the cab driver.

He told me that he was supposed to bring this guy a girl at 8 p.m. He said he was supposed to rap on apartment 303 of the Town House and say "Steve, this is John."

This fellow told us we could use that pass-word but he said after you get in you had better nail him fast because he's wild and liable to do some shooting.

So we went up and used it. Dolan said "This is John" as we knocked on the door. The door opened immediately and we grabbed Hall and searched him, but he didn't give us any trouble.

I found $700 in his wallet and two suitcases full of money, which we later discovered amounted to almost $300,000. Dolan and I looked at the money and right away we knew it must be part of that Kansas City kidnapping. So we asked him and he said "Yes, I'm the guy."

That's about all there was to it. It was just routine. (See other stories, Page 2)

Prison-Time Pay Recommended For All Captured in Europe

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, chief war claims commissioner, today recommended a varied scale of compensation with a maximum of $1 a day for each day military personnel and merchant seamen were held captive in Europe during the Second World War.

His recommendations were announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent. A high government official said the government will implement the report.

The commissioner, however, turned down a demand by the National Council of Canadian Prisoners of War for a flat $1 a day for European prisoners. The $1-a-day award was previously granted to 1,417 former prisoners in the Far Eastern theatre and to men held prisoner by "criminal" organizations.

Chief Justice Campbell of Prince Edward Island made his recommendation in a 33-page report to the government.

He found that all former prisoners of war in Europe had been maltreated. He recommended that compensation be paid to all except in cases where the presumption of maltreatment is rebutted.

More than 8,000 Canadians were held prisoner in Europe.

U.K. Will Talk Peace at Any Russian Level

MARGATE, Eng. (UP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that Britain is willing to discuss peace with Russia "at any level" from Premier Georgi Malenkov on down—and to guarantee that the proposed European Army will never threaten Soviet security.

The gaunt foreign secretary got a tremendous ovation when he strode to the speakers' stand at the Conservative party's annual convention here to begin his first major speech since illness forced him into temporary retirement earlier this year.

Eden told his fellow Conservatives that: "We should pursue all the methods open to us to reduce international tension from a four-power meeting at the highest level to negotiation of even small issues. But we should not abuse our allies if they do not share our views."

The official also said that many former prisoners who qualified previously for the $1-a-day award will receive additional compensation.

These prisoners received the $1 a day only for the length of time they were held by a "criminal" organization. They now will qualify for the general award of 20 cents a day and for other benefits for additional maltreatment while in regular prison camps.

The chief justice was instructed earlier this year to investigate recommendations by the national POW council for the automatic $1 award for all Canadian prisoners in the Second World War.

'TELLER', NOT 'TALLER'

For the fifth successive week Times crossworders failed to come up with correct solution of the weekly puzzle.

Biggest stickler was No. 27 across to which the answer was "teller" for the definition "To be this is a reasonable enough ambition for a youngster." Many people thought "taller" was the word. With no winners this week the next puzzle, appearing tomorrow, will be worth $150 plus the $30 bonus for a regular subscriber. Correct answer to puzzle No. 28 is on page 25.
